Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association Presents Awards

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — In a change from previous years, the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association held its annual awards banquet last week, along with the Pennsylvania Dairy Futures Conference, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders at the Penn Stater Conference Center Hotel instead of holding it in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

Since 1976, the Dairymen's Association presents the Charles E. Cowan Memorial Award each year to a Pennsylvania dairyman who contributes to the improvement and promotion of the Pennsylvania dairy industry. Other annual honorees are the Pennsylvania Distinguished Dairy Woman and the Extension Agent Award.

This year, Richard Waybright from Gettysburg was presented with the Charles C. Cowan award for his superior management capabilities as shown with his ownership and management of the 365 acre Mason Dixon Farms, Inc., and his outstanding leadership qualities within the dairy industry.

The recipient of the 1999 Pennsylvania Distinguished Dairy Women Award is Elaine Sollenberger of Everett. Elaine, along with her husband Ray, have had lifelong involvement with the Pennsylvania Jersey Association.

And the 1999 Extension Agent Award recipient is George C. Wilcox, senior extension agent in Erie County.

Today, Waybright's farm has 50 employees to care for the needs of 2,000 milking cows and 1,700 replacement heifers. They manage 2,000 acres of alfalfa, grass and corn to supply forage to the dairy herd. He is known nationally and worldwide as a progressive innovator in production agriculture.

In 1979 Mason Dixon Farms built their own animal anaerobic digester system to produce biogas that is used to produce all the electricity for the farms and four homes. Because of this achievement, in 1980 the farm received the "White House Award for Biogas

Cowman Memorial Award.

State Agriculture Teachers Attend National Conference

NEW ORLEANS, La. — More than 400 agricultural education professionals from all 50 states attended the 50th annual National Association of Agricultural educators (NAAE) Convention earlier this month. Among the local teachers attending were MeeCee Baker, Greenwood; Christine McCahren, Lampeter; Lehman Metzler, Lancaster; and Gerald Reichard, Chambersburg.

The teachers and state staff gathered for a national meeting that provided teachers with professional development opportunities to strengthen local educational programs. Highlights of the meeting included sessions on partnerships between agricultural educators, agribusiness leaders, and local, state, and national policy makers.

"The exchange of ideas is an important function of the conference," said Duane Fisher, NAAE president from Mt. Auburn, Iowa. "This meeting provides teachers

Special Pages/Advertising/News Deadlines For Holidays, Farm Show Issues

A number of special pages are planned for Lancaster Farming in the next few weeks. In addition, the New Year Holiday and our annual Pennsylvania Farm Show issue bring special deadline schedules, too.

In this the Dec. 26 issue, we dedicate a few pages in section A to the introduction of the Pennsylvania Young Farmer Convention to be hosted by the Manheim Chapter in early February. We have registration forms and a review of the program. In addition, messages from the sponsors of this state-wide event are part of the advertising base with these pages.

The issues for the first two weeks in January will have features and advertising messages related to the Keystone Farm Show and the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

1998 Probably Warmest On Record

ITHACA, N.Y. -- With five days left in the year, it appears probable that 1998 will be the Northeast's warmest year since records began in 1895, according to the climatologists at the Northeast Regional Climate Center at Cornell University.

Up to now, 1953 was the region's warmest year on record with an average temperature of 49.5 degrees Fahrenheit. So far this year, the Northeast's temperature averages 50.2 degrees, just seven-tenths of a degree above the 1953 mark.

CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday; the slaughter steer market was fully steady, but ranged steady to mostly .50 lower than last Thursday's active market. Quality was very good for this time of year and late sales were just as strong as the opening. Holstein steers sold steady to 1.00 higher and slaughter heifers were mostly steady in a light test. Slaughter cows sold firm to 1.00 higher, especially on the fleshier types, and slaughter bulls were steady. Supply included 39 percent slaughter steers and 37 percent slaughter cows.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1160-1430 lbs 61.50-64.50, individual 1340 lbs 65.00. Choice 2-3 1140-1485 lbs 59.35-62.25, few high dressing 1-2 up to 66.25 and low dressing 4-5 down to 57.50; 1490-1570 lbs 56.00-58.50. CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers closed steady to mostly .50 lower. Demand remains fairly good and in the last two weeks local steers have lost only 1.00-1.50, while the Western direct markets have dropped 4.00-5.00 live and 6.00-7.00 dressed. Unbelievably low hog prices are taking their toll on beef demand as retailers are featuring pork specials in their meatcases. Local Holstein steers and slaughter heifers ended the week mostly 1.00 lower. Slaughter cow prices closed 1.00-1.50 higher as availability is certain to be low over the next two weeks in many areas. Slaughter bulls finished firm to 1.00 higher. Supply was made up of around 39 percent slaughter steers, 8 percent slaughter heifers, 39 percent slaughter cows, 5 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1160-1465 lbs 61.10-65.00. Choice 2-3 1095-1485 lbs 59.00-62.25, high dressing 1-2 up to 66.25 and low dressing 4-5 down to 57.50; 1490-1570 lbs 56.00-59.75. Select and low Choice 2-3

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

Prices were unchanged on the West Coast, mediums were lower in New England, and all other prices were unchanged to lower. The market tone remained mostly weak. Demand continued moderate to good, mostly good as holiday shopping needs were filled. Supplies were generally adequate to ample, and mediums were in the longest position. Breaking stock supplies were adequate to ample from regular sources, and demand for extra eggs was light. Light type hens were at least adequate for reduced holiday schedules.

Delmarva Broiler

ATLANTA, GA.
DECEMBER 22, 1998

CORRECTION.....CORRECTION.....CORRECTION

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was sluggish at best. Offerings varied from adequate to ample, and extra supplies, particularly the smaller sizes were generally difficult to place. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights varied in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than truckiot asking prices were unchanged at "55 to 69" cents; however, sellers were usually open to negotiation. Trade sentiment was steady to weak. In the parts complex, wings continued to clear well; however, most other items were competitively priced and slow in clearing.

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Truckiot buying activity was mixed with dealers having a tough time passing some very attractive offerings. Sellers were often noted as struggling to make a sale as most buyers wanted product from Wednesday and preferably Thursday's slaughter.

Retail and distributive movement continued to center around the attractively priced competitive meat items. The market tone was mostly weak and unsettled.

EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS, DECEMBER 18, 1998. FEDERAL-STATE

All prices trended lower. The market tone was weak. Demand was light. Supplies were adequate to fully adequate as most breakers planned reduced holiday schedules. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending December 12, 1998 was 3% more than last week, and 12% more than a week ago last year.

WE SUPPORT PA AGRICULTURE

PA FARM SHOW JAN 9 - 14

It's Pennsylvania Farm Show time again; time for the annual appearance of the creature known as the "whistlin' go-fer." It seems fewer and fewer farmers are attending the Farm Show in recent years. Instead, most of the people are non-farmers, folks who come up to farm machinery displays, look the equipment over, then whistle and ask "What's that go for?"

But at a time when farm equipment manufacturers and most farm equipment dealers are staying away from the Farm Show, Hoober, Inc. believes our presence is as important as ever. By being at the Farm Show with a prominent display of farm equipment and answering questions from the thousands of visitors, Hoober has the opportunity to stress to the non-farming population the vital role agriculture plays in Pennsylvania. The Farm Show also allows us to explain what issues are important to Pennsylvania farmers and why looking out for the interest of farmers is good for the entire state.

So, even though we'll spend lots of time with the "whistlin' go-fers" we don't mind. Being at the Farm Show is something Hoober, Inc. feels is time well spent. And who knows, if you stop by the Hoober, Inc display, you might catch a glimpse of a "whistlin' go-fer" yourself.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Tue Dec 22, 1998

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Wheat bids were mixed, pressured was due to lack of fresh export demand this week and some fund selling on the Board. However, re- ports that Bangladesh bought foreign wheat limited declines. Corn bids finished steady to firm in reaction to good overnight export sales to South Korea and indications Taiwan also bought 4 million bushels overnight. Soybean bids, however, were moderately lower on trade corrections and some farmer selling reported. Very little foreign orders for beans this week also weighed on bids. Wheat mixed. Corn steady to 1 cent higher. Sorghum steady. Soybeans 2 to 4 cents lower.

Merry Christmas To All And A Happy New Year

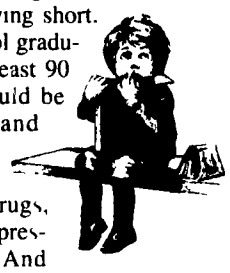
The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With

DEC. 28, 1998-JAN. 3, 1999

FULL WOLF MOON, JAN. 1.

BY NEXT NEW YEAR . . .

A quick look at some of the National Education Goals established in 1990 by our states' governors, and endorsed by Presidents George Bush and Bill Clinton, shows that time is growing short. By the year 2000, our high school graduation rate should increase to at least 90 percent. Our U S. students should be first in the world in science and math. Every American adult should be literate Every school in America should be free of drugs, violence, and the unauthorized presence of firearms and alcohol. And every school will promote partnerships to increase parental involvement Ready?



Education is the cheap defense of nations.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Cut and recycle old Christmas cards into new postcards.

BLACK-EYED PEA SALAD

2-1/2 cups cooked black-eyed peas
1 cup kernel corn
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup diced celery
1 cup diced red bell pepper
2 teaspoons diced red onion
1/4 cup rice vinegar
1/4 cup cilantro leaves
freshly ground pepper

Blanch vegetables in boiling water until just tender. Combine all ingredients and allow to stand for 30 minutes. (Brings good luck for the New Year!)

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The Old Farmer's Weather Proverbs

The 12 days between Dec. 25 and Jan. 5 are said to be keys to the weather for each month of the coming year.

If Childermas Day (Dec. 28) is fair, it promises plenty.

Announcing New Products for Dairy, Swine & Poultry Producers.

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer these products to meet your nutritional needs. Manufacturing these products ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

GOLDEN PRO 46 XP
This natural, mechanically extruded and expelled soybean product is experiencing great acceptance with local dairymen. A course golden colored meal with a 6% fat content, Golden Pro 46 XP is extremely palatable. Golden Pro 46 XP is a natural way to bring the value of high bypass protein into diets that require a lower fat level.

CRUDE SOYBEAN OIL

GOLDEN MEAL 40
An 18 percent fat content along with a 40 percent crude protein makes this mechanically extruded meal product a valuable component in a variety of rations. Full fat content gives you a high level of digestible energy, while high temperature extruding ruptures the oil cells for better nutritional absorbtions.

To make these products available, and to help you utilize your home raised soybeans Keystone Mills announces its

Soybean Exchange Program

As manufacturers and distributers of Golden Pro 46 XP and Golden Meal 40, we are anxious for you to try our products. We are offering a soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

OPINION

Proud To Be A Farmer

As we come to the end of the year, we look back to see change in the making and we look forward in anticipation of new and exciting challenges. The interdependence of the various segments of agriculture could not be more pronounced. With high milk prices and low grain prices, the saying that what is one farmer's gain is another farmer's loss has certainly been proven true again.

We believe this should not be so. Milk prices should be up where they are. But grain prices should also be up at profitable levels. With consolidation of the companies that control the manufacturing and distribution of the food supply, maybe we need the large farmer controlled companies to provide the access to the retail markets and get farmers up closer to America's dinner tables in the food distribution channels.

The old idea that supply and demand controls the market sometimes seems to be out of line with what we see in the agriuclture industry. Just when the Dairy Compact idea was gaining some force, milk prices suddenly shot up to profitable levels. Is this really a supply and demand situation? We don't know, but as the Dutchman said, "It makes one wonder."

Now with hog and beef prices so low that producers are in danger of going bankrupt, the government is talking about giving handouts to them again. Of course, when the government becomes the hand-out-or it takes control of its hand-out-ees. Past experience suggests that we don't want this control, so 1999 should be full of challenges too.

And yet, to be associated with agriculture has been rewarding in the past. And we believe it will be in the future also. We wish prosperity to all those who choose to face the challenges of agriculture into the next millenium. Every business has its challenges and we doubt that farming has any less or more challenges than other industries. Yes, you can be proud to be a farmer even with the challenges of the future. Without farmers, the world dies. Best wishes in the new year.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Determine Fields to Rotate

Deciding when fields should be rotated to another crop requires time and some key information in order to make the best decision, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. Rotational changes should be considered well in advance of when the change will take place

Several factors to consider include a projection of the potential production of the existing crop if maintained another year compared to a new crop, any pH or soil fertility level adjustments necessary for the old or new crop, the suitability of the soil for the existing and new crop, the crop or feed needs of the farm operation, any insect or disease problems in the existing crop that will be controlled or no longer exist as a problem in the new crop and a projection of the impact on farm income for both the old and new crop.

To Look At Rotating Sod Fields

If a perennial sod is going to be rotated to corn or another annual crop, planning the weed control program well in advance is of paramount importance, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. A successful approach is the early application of herbicides. Early applications usually improve weed control.

On livestock and dairy farms where both alfalfa and corn are grown, soil fertility levels may be another key factor in deciding when to rotate from alfalfa to corn. Livestock manure is normally applied to only corn fields. This management practice builds soil levels of phosphorous and potassium during the corn portion of the rotation.

It makes good economic sense to take advantage of this build up by rotating to alfalfa when the existing alfalfa fields require the addition of fertilizer which must be purchased. Alfalfa will help use the excess nutrients built up during the corn portion of the rotation.

To Look At Rotating Alfalfa Fields

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reports deciding when to rotate out of alfalfa is often a more difficult decision to make. Normally anytime the number of alfalfa crowns or plants is less than five per square foot, rotating to another crop makes production sense unless this would leave the farm without adequate alfalfa production to meet livestock feeding needs.

When examining the number of alfalfa plants in afield in the fall or early winter, several adjustments should be made to the data gathered. Dig up several plants and determine the number or per cent that are healthy. Also, consider the buildup of hard to control weeds in the stand. The decision to rotate out of alfalfa may be delayed until after the first cutting of alfalfa next year if additional forage is needed.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE PROMISE UNBROKEN

December 27, 1998

Background Scripture:
Luke 24: 13-23
Devotional Reading:
John 16:1-11

It may seem quite strange to follow the Christmas story with a portion of the Easter story and only one week in between. But the good news of Jesus Christ is just one story in several segments and it is well for us to realize that Christmas and Easter are all part of that one story.

The prophet Isaiah had prophesied, "Behold, a young woman shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel" (Is. 7:14). When Matthew quotes this, he goes on to explain that Immanuel "means, God with us" (Matt. 1:23b) When Jesus began his ministry, many were attracted to him because they felt that when they were with Jesus they were in the presence of God.

THE PROMISE NOT BROKEN

That is what ties the Easter story so closely to the message of Christmas. If his enemies were able to arrest, try and execute him, the promise of "God with us" would be negated. If Jesus was put to death it would be impossible for him to fulfill his promise, "Lo, I am with you always..."(Matt. 28:20)

The experiences of the resurrected Christ, on the other hand, were God's evidence that the promise of "God with us" was not broken, for Jesus was still with them. Unfortunately, the good news seemed almost too good to be true. They found an empty tomb, but that was not proof that Jesus was alive. They didn't know how to evaluate the testimony of the women who went to the empty tomb. The two disciples on the Emmaus road did not know what to make of these conflicting thoughts. They reacted much as some of us would have; wanting desperately to believe, they nevertheless doubted.

Isn't it strange that these men walked for miles with the risen Christ and did not recognize him until they sat at table and broke bread together? Or have you wondered why the Risen Christ appeared as a flesh and bones human to some and as a spiritual vision to others? The four gospel accounts of the resurrected Christ cannot be pieced together. Thank God for that, I say. This is not an accident report, but the most transcendental encounter any of us can experience!

THEIR EYES WERE OPENED

Some people get rather excited about these discrepancies in the gospel accounts, as if they all should fit together comfortably. But to me the discrepancies and differences in the resurrection appearances are healthy. Because these accounts are so different, they are more believable as a spiritual experience. That's what happens when we encounter God close at hand—just as late in John's account of Jesus' ministry, God spoke, saying that he has glorified his name "and I will glorify it again." Though some disciples clearly heard God's voice, John tells us some "said that it thundered"! John 12:29).

When Jesus "took the bread and blessed, and broke it," then "their eyes were opened and they recognized him." Often we have the same problem. Jesus is with us, just as he promised, but for some reason known only to the One who made us, we do not recognize him. It is as if we are wearing blinders. He is so close to us—sitting at the table with us when we break bread, for example—and we just don't realize it. In retrospect sometimes we can say, "Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked to us on the road, while he opened to us the scriptures?" (Lk. 24:32)

Even when he appeared to leave them for the last time(24"50-53), he would still be with them, but in a different way. "And behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you; but stay in the city, until you are clothed with power on high."The physical body has its limitations, even the physical body of Jesus. Jesus never promised to be physically with us forever. The promise of his power is an even greater fulfillment of the promise "God with us"

York Holstein Club Honors Juniors, Assists Fire Victims

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

THOMASVILLE (York Co.) — York County Holstein club members gathering for their annual meeting took the opportunity to honor their active juniors and raise funds for a fire-devastated, dairy farm family. The annual county meeting was held December 11 at the Thomasville Fire Company meeting room.

Special contributions were made during the meeting for the Jeff Stambaugh family, East Berlin, whose home was destroyed a few days earlier by a fire believed started by a woodstove. Dianna Stambaugh, home alone at the time the blaze began, escaped by climbing through an upstairs window and jumping to the ground. The stone home and most of the family's personal possessions were a total loss. The Holstein club will continue to forward contributions received for the family; those may be sent to the York County Holstein Association, c/o June Boyer, Secretary-Treasurer, 110 Biesecker Road, York, PA 17404.

The East Berlin young woman, daughter of Shirley and Larry Trimmer, took All-American and Junior All-American titles for the 1997 show season year with her spring yearling heifer, JCY April Starbuck. April was named junior champion of the junior show at the 1997 World Dairy Expo in Wisconsin and named an honorable mention junior champion of the open show as well.

Junior All-Pennsylvania recognition for 1997 was earned by two of the county's Holstein youth. Justin Hall, Airville, won Honorable Mention with his senior calf entry, Woodbine ND JRJ Frosty-ET and Daphne Doll, Glen Rock, took the Reserve Junior All-Pennsylvania title with her four-year-old, Dar-Dale Skybuck Melissa. Daphne also received recognition as a junior Progressive Breeder for her cattle's accomplishments.

Three juniors participated in the Distinguished Junior Member contest, submitting scrapbooks of their experiences and involvement with their cattle. Tricia Knight, Airville, was selected the winner, with Justin and Shane Hall chosen as runners-up.

In the two-year-old category, Greg Walker's Walk-Le Mascot Ann was the butterfat production winner, with a 305-day record of 24,480 milk, 928 fat, and 755 protein. Chad Thoman, Dallastown, earned the milk and protein awards with Garwill Skybuck Pebbles and her 305-day records of 26,356 milk, 803 fat, and 792 protein.

Three-year-old entries were split among three contenders. Walk-Le Ryan Maggie, owned by Greg Walker, was the milk winner with a 305-day lactation of 30,705 milk, 876 fat, and 856 protein. Michelle Walker claimed the fat award with her Walk-Le Thunder Skipidy and a 305-day record of 26,531 milk, 938 fat, and 828 protein. Protein award went to Craig Thoman with Garwill Skybuck Peaches and a 305-day record of 27,606 milk, 795 fat, and 921 protein.

Greg Walker's Walk-Le KQ Misty was a double four-year-old winner, taking milk and protein awards with a 305-day record of 28,450 milk, 894 fat, and 838 protein. Butterfat winner was Michelle Walker's Walk-Le Signal Buffy and a 305-day lactation of 22,800 milk, 949 fat and 743 protein.

Aged cow category honors all went to Jacob Hushon, Delta, and his White-Oak Vu Leadsman Jamica, completing a 305-day record with 31,565 milk, 871 fat, and 993 protein.

In the business portion of the meeting, three directors were elected for three-year terms on the county Holstein board. New directors are Sue Beshore, New Cumberland, Darla Doll, Glen Rock, and Chris Druck, Airville. Recognized as outgoing directors were Ed Calhoun, Glen Rock, Cindy Hall, Airville, and April Cooper, Delta. Other board members include Jenelle Boyer, Glen Rock, June Boyer, York, Leroy Bupp, Seven Valleys, Dan Hushon, Delta, Roy Thompson, Wellsville and Brad Walker, Thomasville.

DASHING THROUGH THE SNOW

The storm will pass. And thankfully, so will a Kubota snowblower. Try our snowblower attached to a Kubota B-Series or L-Series tractor for a snow removal team that's hard to beat.

They are a cinch to operate using the tractor's 3-point hitch as a hydraulic lifting system. Clear snow from driveways, roads or parking lots. Break up and clear heavy drifts. A special heavy-duty rear-mount snowblower is a recent addition to Kubota's B- and L-Series line-up.

So before the forecast calls for snow, make a dash to your Kubota dealer.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, OK
Tue Dec 22, 1998

USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Demand light. Feeder cattle and calves 2.00- 4.00 lower, with spots much lower in light test of prices; market not tested as supply insufficient in any one class to make load lots. Road conditions to the sale were poor as freezing drizzle made travel slow. By mid morning blowing snow on top of light layer of ice made travel from stockyards terrible at best. Slaughter cows 1.00 lower in very light test. Few slaughter bulls steady. Demand light for minimal supply of slaughter cows and bulls. Demand and market more a function of trucking than need. With too few slaughter cattle available to make a load and no other cow sales upcoming this week buyers needed additional cost savings to pay trucking. Total of 50 cows and bulls sold with 70 percent to packers. Receipts this week 1,540; last week 10,097; last year no sale. Supply consisted of 45 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 52 percent calves under 600 lbs; 3 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

NFU Requests Trade Adjustment Payments For Farmers Hurt By Imports

DENVER, Colo – The National Farmers Union (NFU) board of directors called on President Bill Clinton to approve payments under the Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) program for producers hurt by agricultural imports from Canada.

The TAA program, established in 1974 and administered by the Department of Labor, provides aid to U.S. workers who lose their jobs or whose hours of work or wages are reduced as a result of increased imports.

USDA this fall reported 1998 imports of live animals and red meat from Canada at their highest point since 1970. A large volume of hog imports has clogged slaughterhouses, driving prices down in some areas to their lowest level in more than 50 years. Moreover, a steady stream of grain, cattle, and lamb from Canada has harmed farmers in several states.

"Canadian imports, particularly pork imports, have taken a heavy toll on producers in some regions of the country, said NFU President Leland Swenson. "We believe reopening the trade agreement with Canada would be the best way to fully address the import problem. Absent that, the government has some obligation to assist producers who don't have the means, particularly under today's market, to absorb the losses caused by a flawed trade agreement."

"For more than 20 years, U.S. workers have received assistance when surging imports threatened their livelihood, it should be no different for farmers, " Swenson said. "By utilizing an existing program, we believe trade adjustment assistance is the most effective way to target compensation to those producers unduly impacted by heavy imports,"

Swenson also said that if the president determines he does not have authority to provide payments to farmers, NFU will call on Congress to enact legislation to do so.

NFO Urges Cull Cow Donations

AMES, Iowa — National Farmers Organization recently unveiled a strategy to lend a helping hand to those less fortunate this holiday season.

The plan asks dairy producers to donate the processing costs and meat of one cow, culled from the dairy herd, to local food pantries or other charities.

"In this, the season of giving, many producers have expressed a lot of interest in helping those in need," said Gene Paul, National Farmers Organization president.

"Because milk prices are very near dairy production costs, we believe it is time to help align supply with demand," Paul continued. In recent months, dairy producers have not been culling their herds as aggressively, in order to take advantage of positive dairy market trends.

Not only is the donation tax deductible, but dairymen can benefit from a supply reduction, which could offset the milk price drop economists are predicting.

"Producers must realize that even a small jump in production, as minute as 1 percent, can cause an 18 percent drop in price," Paul cautioned.

Cull cows, animals periodically removed from dairy herds because of age and decreased milk production, are one of the top sources of hamburger used in the fast food and retail industries.

Farmers should contact their area food pantries and/or other local charities for more information and donation sites.

Maryland Dairy Industry Group Hails Federal Reports On Northeast Dairy Compact

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Maryland Dairy Industry Association (MDIA) has hailed two recent studies by the U.S. General Accounting Office (GAO), and the USDA Inspector General's (IG) office, indicating that the Northeast Dairy Compact is an effective program for dairy farmers in the New England region.

Both reports indicate that the Northeast Dairy Compact is in full compliance with federal government obligations, and do not threaten price or supply stability for the region's consumers.

GAO is the investigative arm of Congress that reviews federal agency spending practices. Their report, entitled "Information on Prices for Fluid Milk and the Factors that Influence Them," was released in early November at the behest of Vermont Senators James Jeffords (r) and Patrick Leahy (D). Based on a sample of 31 metropolitan markets, GAO reported no direct correlation between retail prices for Class I fluid milk and the price received by dairy producers for the same product.

In addition, it held that retail prices are influenced by a variety of factors aside from production costs, and that approximately 86 percent of Class I milk produced by farmers is marketed through dairy cooperatives that are owned or financed by producer-members.

USDA's Inspector General's (IG) report, conducted at the request of U.S. Rep. Bob Goodlatte (R-Va.) says the Northeast Dairy Compact is in full compliance with federal guidelines, and "has established sufficient reserves and has timely satisfied its obligation to the Commodity Credit Corporation."

"It's no surprise that GAO and USDA's Inspector General's office show that the Northeast Dairy Compact is working for New England dairy farmers," says MDIA president Myron Wilhide of Detour, Maryland. "Both reports counter the arguments from Compact detractors that it is simply a cash cow for producers. GAO confirms that there is no linkage between production cost and retail cost, while the IG reaffirms that current costs for running the Northeast Compact are on target with original estimates. I hope that the documented success of this program will serve as a model for other states to adopt regional dairy compacts of their own."

The Northeast Dairy Compact, approved under the 1996 "Freedom to Farm Act," allows New England states (Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut) to operate an interstate dairy supply and marketing system that guarantees a fair return for producers, while ensuring a stable price of fluid milk for consumers.

"MDIA believes that these two reports are further evidence that a Compact arrangement would benefit Maryland dairy farmers, and the state's agricultural industry as a whole," adds Wilhide. "Earlier this year, we helped to secure passage in Annapolis for Maryland's entry into the Northeast Dairy Compact. For 1999, we hope to officially join the Compact, and to marshal support for extending the life of this successful program well into the 21st Century."

MDIA represents all segments of the dairy industry, serving to enhance the economic viability of Maryland dairy farmers and the dairy industry statewide.

The Year 2000 Bug

NANCY DEPOE
Montour Co. Extension
Economic & Community
Dev. Agent

As 1998 comes to a close, we are now only twelve months away from the new millennium. And as thoughts turn toward the year 2000, one cannot help but wonder if communities and businesses of central Pennsylvania will be ready for the "Year 2000 Bug." This "bug" is really a computer problem that will arise when we reach the year 2000 and some computers won't be able to deal with it. Computer and telecommunications professionals who have been working on the problem have affectionately labeled it "Y2K."

For those of you who may not know, the problem arose when computer system managers and programmers tried to save computer memory by representing the date with only two digits instead of the usual four. So 1981 became just 81, 1998 became 98, and so on. The problem is that when January 1, 2000 arrives some computers will record it as "00", of those computers, some will recognize it as 1900 instead of the year 2000. This glitch could cause computers to generate false data, or possibly even shutdown.

The year Y2K bug can have an affect upon all of us. Even if you solve your own computer problems and are ready for the new millennium, what about those suppliers, or service providers who you depend on. Will they be ready? With our heavy dependence on computers today, it is easy to see how widespread the problem could quickly become.

Many national and state agencies have been working to make organizations aware of the potential problems associated with Y2K. Cooperative Extension Services of the United States Department of Agriculture, and the Office of Information Technology of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania are just two of the many groups providing information on Y2K.

Here are three suggestions offered by Cooperative Extension Services/USDA for local businesses and communities: (1) First, figure out if you have a Y2K problem, rather than assume you don't. That means being sure not only that your own computers are okay, but those of your vendors are as well. (2) Second, be informed. Rather than resolving problems after they occur, make realistic assessments based on what's important to your operations and take a proactive approach. And finally, (3) Act now Most Y2K problems aren't particularly complicated, but it can take time against a deadline that truly cannot be moved, and last-minute fixes may not work.

Berks Extension Sets Dairy Day

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — the annual Dairy Day in Berks County is set from 9 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 5 here at the Berks County Agricultural Center. The program will concentrate on two topics of great importance to dairy farmers: herd health and managing labor.

All dairy farmers have to deal with and/or consider BVD, Johne's, and contagious mastitis on their dairy farms. To prevent these and other herd health problems, dairy farmers need to develop a herd health and biosecurity plan for their farm.

Because of increased herd sizes, today's dairy farmers must learn to manage labor. Whether hired, sibling, or children, the labor force is an essential part of a successful dairy operation. The session will help dairy farmers sharpen their skills and knowledge in this area.

The agenda for the program, which begins at 9:40 a.m., is as follows: on-farm research update; preventing and controlling BVD, Johne's, and contagious mastitis; the future of your farm - estate planning basics; developing a herd health and biosecurity plan for your dairy; motivating and retaining your labor — including family; and my labor experiences on our dairy farm - panel of dairy farmers.

Program participants include: Clyde Myers, Penn State extension agent, Berks County; Dennis Ginder, multicounty farm management agent in Chester and Lancaster counties for Penn State; Dr. Larry Hutchinson, professor of veterinarian science at Penn State; Harold Myer, dairy farmer in northwestern Berks County; John Rutherford, multicounty farm management agent in Berks, Lebanon, and Dauphin counties; David Schuler, dairy farmer in Richmond Township; and John Stump, dairy farmer on Penn Township.

Cost of the program is $4 which includes lunch and handouts. Reservations can be made by sending a check made payable to Berks County Extension Special Account and mailed to Berks County Cooperative Extension, Berks County Ag Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, P 19533. For more information and a flyer, contact Clyde Myers at Penn State Cooperative Extension, Berks County Ag Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533, (610) 378-1327.

A similar program for Dairy Day will be held in Bucks/Montgomery counties on Jan. 6. Contact Mike Fournier for Bucks/Montgomery counties session at (215) 345-3283.

The High Cost of Mastitis - Article 29

Remember, you are in a food production business As a food producer and as a dairy farm business manager your goal should be

- Market high quality, residue-free milk
- Keep somatic cell counts below 200,000
- Enhance herd profits

Most of the income on a dairy farm is made in the udder and flows through the teat end. Therefore, manage your source of income well! Remember, healthy udders produce higher quality milk, more milk and more profits Therefore, prevent mastitis because it is very costly for the reasons mentionseed below

1 Every time cell counts double milk production drops about 1 5 lb because of damage done to milk secreting tissue in the udder See Table 1

   Do not be satisfied with cell counts over 200,000 If you have ever experienced a problem, and successfully reduced cell counts from levels of 800,000 or higher down to about 400,000, you probabley felt like you have had made great progress, and you did! But, more production is yet to be gained by continuing to drop cell counts to 200,000 or less, as shown below However, you probably won't see much improvement in milk until next lactation, after cows have gone through a dry period and damaged secretory tissue has had a chance to be repaired.

2 Low cell counts improve milk prices

   - One high count cow in a small herd can be responsible for 50% or more of all the cells in the bulk tank She could be denying you quality premium payments, not just on her milk, but on all the milk that goes out the farm lane! That makes her a very expensive cow! As the graph illustrates, one code 8 cow can put as many cells in the bulk tank as 32 code 3 cows that are producing similar amounts of milk!

3 It is costly to treat mastitis infections and discard milk from treated cows

4 There is risk of contaminating milk supplies and meat with antibiotic residues, and the cost of residue contamination is high

5 There is risk of losing milk markets due to high cell counts and antibiotic residues

6 Culling rates increase, and the culled mastitis cows have lower resale value

Table 1 SCC Scores, Cell Counts and Milk Production Losses

A Message From Our President

John N. Groff, Pennsylvania Young Farmer president.

Greetings once again to all of you from the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association The Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association is an educational program that endeavors to meet the needs of adult farmers and helps them to keep abreast of the changes and technologies that are available in agriculture today As with any organization, our goal is to achieve collectively more than we would be able to achieve singularly.

Recently, at the National Young Farmers Institute in Omaha, Nebraska, I was again reminded that we, in the farming and agribusiness commuinty, are experiencing very rapidly changing times As we face new economic and marketing challanges, as well as new technological and environmental issues, it is more important than ever that we are as fully informed as possible. There has been no other time in history that we have faced the type of challanges that we are facing today.

For this reason I am very excited about the programs that are being planned for the PYFA Winter Convention which is being hosted by the Manheim Chapter at the Comfort Inn, Centerville, Pa There are many important educational sessions as well as informative tours and interesting workshops for farmers, businessmen, ladies and visitors

As a result, I would like to personally invite you to take some time out of your busy schedule this winter to attend this Convention. Please take a few moments to fill out the registration form and plan to attend this event with your friends and neighbors I assure you it will be time well spent as you plan and make management decisions for the future

I would urge you as well to support and join your local Young Farmers Chapter. Many excellent meetings and programs are being held in the local chapters that will also be very beneficial. It would be well worth your time to consider these and take advantage of the services that are being offered.

See you in February,

David N. Groff
President

Editor's Note: Lancaster Farming thanks the agribusinesses that have made supporting contributions and/or plan to exhibit at the trade show when the Manheim Young Farmer chapter hosts the state winter convention in February. We join in this support. On these pages dedicated to current Young Farmer news some of the supporting agribusinesses have advertising messages too. A special thanks also goes to Brubaker Agronomics, Ephrata, with Mike Brubaker, owner, and Mary Stophel, newsletter editor, for the work they put into the December issue of the Pennsylvania Young Farmer newsletter that was sent to all members with the information about the 1999 Pennsylvania Young Farmers Winter Convention. This newsletter is reproduced here as well as posted on Lancaster Farming's home page on the Internet at (www.lancasterfarming.com).

Pennsylvania Young Farmers Visit Nebraska

RICHARD HOPPES
PYFA Education Coordinator

OMAHA, Neb - Fourty Pennsylvania Young Farmers and spouses attended the 32nd NYFEA Institute in Omah, Neb. earlier this month.

We met with 500 young farmers from 22 states in an educational event put on by the Young Farmer chapters of Nebraska. Pennsylvania will be hosting this event next year on Dec. 8-11 in Hershey.

We were bussed to different parts of the state to see operations such as a 12,000-head feedlot owned by Ed Bracht at West Point, Schmanden Elk Farm, and a 2,000-head dairy farm in Wayne. We also visited the Golden Harvest Seed Company in Waterloo.

Other points of interest during the five days we were there included the Nebraska State Capitol, Duncan Aviation, James Arthur Vineyards, the University of Nebraska Memorial Stadium, (home of the Nebraska Cornhuskers), and Flerscher Manufactur-

Tuesday Tours

Nissley Beef Farm

Nissley Brothers is a partnership between brothers Darwin and Bernard Nissley. They farm about 300 acres and finish about 2,000 head of cattle per year. Cattle are fed in a 850 head bank barn with a slotted floor. The majority of the cattle are Black Angus and are purchased at 800-1000 lb. and finished at 1300-1500 lb. Crops grown consist of corn, soybeans and barley. All crops grown are fed to the cattle, with the exception of the soybeans that are sold as a cash crop.

Balmer Brothers Dairy Farm

Balmer Brothers is a partnership between Cletus and Dale Balmer. Their farming operation consists of 430 milking cows. They raise the majority of their own feed on 700 acres of land. In the fall of 1997 they moved into a new dairy facility that includes a double 12-surge parlor

Wenger's Feed Mill

Wenger's Feed is a regional supplier of feed, eggs, nutritional and other allied services to the swine and poultry industries. Wenger Feeds, with corporate offices in Rheems, PA, has additional milling facilities in PA as well as MD and produces over one million tons of feed per year

Wenger Feeds currently feeds over 19.5 million layers. Wenger's egg marketing division, Eastern Ag Service, markets eggs from more than 9.3 million birds. Wenger Feeds is involved in custom milling and formulation for independent producers and agribusinesses. Wenger Feeds operates its mills and dispatch trucks 24 hours a day and employs over 250 individuals.

Manheim Auto Auction

Visit the nation's largest "dealer only" auto auction. Every Friday 24 auctioneers sell an average of 9,000 cars and trucks in a building the size of two football fields. Most vehicles are sold in less than 1 minute. Next to agriculture, the Manheim Auto Auction is the largest employer in the area. They are very generous with their school and community support.

Root's Farmers Market

Your visit to the Country Market and Auction will highlight the rich agriculture traditions of Lancaster County. For over 74 years this family-run country market has been the place to be on a Tuesday in Lancaster Over 200 standholders sell a variety of goods including meats, cheese, baked goods, clothing, homemade crafts, snack foods, antiques, household goods, and lots of good food to eat while you shop There is also a poultry and small animal auction.

Kreider Farms

This family operated farming and agriculture processing operation includes more than 1,000 milking Holstein dairy cows and two million laying hens Eggs, milk and dairy products are processed by the Kreiders and served in their restaurants, sold in their dairy stores, and marketed to stores in New York and other metropolitan areas. A new state-of-the-art dairy milking parlor and free stall barn is currently under construction

Thursday Tours

Shady Brae Farm

—Is a father and son enterprise whose primary activity is commercial egg production and processing. They farm 275 acres in a crop rotation of corn, soybean and wheat. We will tour the layer complex consisting of eight, 83,000-bird capacity laying houses connected to a processing plant The complex produces and processes over 40,000 dozen eggs (per day) that are shipped to grocery chain stores, restaurants, and institutional wholesalers.

Lancaster Incinerator

This state-of-the-art waste plant was built in 1991 for $105 million. It has the capacity to process 12,000 tons of waste everyday The three boilers run 24 hours a day, 7-days a week. The boiler water is converted into steam heat and is piped into turbine generators For every 10 truckloads of waste entering the resource recovery facility, only one truck filled with ash leaves for the Frey Farm Landfill.

RW Sauder's Eggs

—Traces their roots to a depression era sales enterprise started by Frank Sauder who traveled to Philadelphia several times each week where he sold eggs from the back of a truck. Today, Frank's grandson Paul is the third generation to operate the business. Sauder's employs more than 500 people in three divisions and five processing plants in PA, OH and MD. They are one of the nation's largest marketers and processors of eggs and the undisputed leader in the Northeast.

Sturgis Pretzels

Come twist a handmade soft pretzel. Visit the first pretzel factory in America. Tour the 200-year-old bakery and modern plant. At the conclusion of the tour, visit the Sturgis Pretzel Factory outlet with pretzel products and gifts.

Wednesday Educational Workshops

Estate Planning — Law - James & Clark, LLP

This program focuses on the tax implications of transferring a farm during lifetime or at death. The changes caused by the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 and the IRS Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998 will be covered, including the changes to the special use valuation rules and the new family owned business deduction. This deduction allows a farmer to exclude $1.3 million assets from federal estate tax.

The Financial Superhighway – Mark Nestleroth, Agent, New York Life

Learn about financial products and their use in an integrated planning process (business, farm or personal situations). The thought process challenges the consumer to take charge of his or her own planning process. Learn how to use the elements for strategic investing in business, farm or personal planning for the rest of your life. Life insurance, investments, business planning, retirement planning, college planning and estate planning are the financial strategies involved.

Nutrient & Land Management - Kevin Seibert, Nutrient Mt. Specialist, Lancaster Co. Conservation Dist. & Mike Brubaker, CPAg, CCA, President, Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service

You have an approved Act 6 Nutrient Management Plan – what's next? Act 6 is not just a law, it is good farm management. What records beside financial should you be keeping on your farm? The discussion of this workshop will center around field and livestock records. Records to be reviewed include: annual farm manure production, crop yields, field manure application rates and dates, manure exporting records, and livestock weight records Bring your questions and nutrient management plans.

Working with Your School District – Share the Good News — Deb Seibert, Ag Ed Instructor, Manheim Central High School & Manheim Central School District Representatives

In these times of budget cuts and curriculum program review, how do we maintain our Young Farmer Program? Look at the Young Farmer Program through the eyes of a School Board member and a School Administrator. What benefits does a Young Farmer Chapter bring to a school district? What is working for your chapter? Bring your ideas and program of activities to share with other Young Farmer members

Ladies A.M. Workshops

Country Floral Design

Beat the winter blues and be ready for spring decorating by crafting a lovely sunflower and eucalyptus display in a quart-canning jar. With Carol Myhn's (Carol's Creations, Manheim) assistance you will create and complete a tasteful country arrangement to take home to bring a touch of country to your décor.

Get Ready, Get Set, Stamp!

Enjoy a brief introduction to the act of stamping and its wide variety of uses. With Valentine's Day nearing the convention date, you'll enjoy crafting a holiday gift bag, novelty box and four cards. See what you can do to personalize gifts and notes. Take home finished works of art – ready for gift giving.

Ladies Lunch Tours

Rockvale Outlet Shopping Trip

Stop an an Amish home for a catered luncheon and then on to the famous Rockvale Outlets (120 stores) for an afternoon of serious shopping or just window browsing. Return to the convention center between 5:00-5:30 p m to prepare for the evening meal.

Manheim Sightseeing & Shopping Trip

Enjoy a catered luncheon in a local setting followed by stops in the Manheim/Lititz area. This tour will include visits to several unique shops, as well as buildings of agricultural and architectural interest. We will return to the convention center in time to prepare for the evening meal.

National Chairman Reports

Larry Wilkinson reports that excitement continues to grow as plans fall into place for the 1999 National Young Farmers Educational Institute in Hershey. The Institute for Young Farmers throughout the United States will take place on December 8-11, 1999.

"In the November meeting of the executive planning committee, it is clear great progress is being made in planning the 1999 institute," Wilkinson said. "Tour stops include some state of the art ag businesses, large farming operations, historic landmarks, and manufacturing firms such as Harley Davidson. Of the many exciting things planned for Pennsylvania, one of the favorite events is bound to be a live stage Christmas production on Thursday evening at Sight and Sound's Millennium Theatre, "The Miracle of Christmas."

A special thanks was made to the Gettysburg Young Farmers Chapter for a $2,000 donation to the 1999 institute. A video has been made to promote Pennsylvania's agriculture at the 1999 Institute. This video was shown at this year's Institute in Omaha. A promotional booth was also set up and members from Pennsylvania were on had to answer questions.

Mason Dixon Farms

Mason Dixon Farms Inc is a classic example, that the 1948 family owned farm consisting of 360 acres 12 cows plus other livestock, fertilized with hard work dedication and planning through several generations can blossom into the present day complex of 2100 acres over 1900 milk cows and over 1500 replacement heifers As you tour the farm you'll see some innovative techniques, as well as some standard methods of operations Their upgraded calving facilities have greatly reduced the mortality rate This allows the herd to grow at between 5 and 10% per year The breeding endeavors are geared toward functional-type cows with a higher than average milk production The herd has been closed since 1979 The two double herringbone shaped milking parlors are where all the action is! The computer chip necklace each milk cow wears plugs her milk production into a computer that keeps track of daily milk production weekly average and lactation total As you may expect feed is of primary importance about 600 tons of feed is fed each week The 1988 addition of a state of the art feed mill which has a computerized feed rationing system has standardized and simplified the mixing process A harvester which was modified extensively in conjunction with a smaller unit has given Mason Dixon Farms the capacity to harvest 1000 tons of corn silage per day using five men

Proposed Beef Cooperative Could Bring Better Prices To Producers

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIONTOWN (Fayette Co.) — Despite all the negative news about low beef prices lately, some steps are already being taken to help producers get better money for their product.

A steering committee was recently established to look into the feasibility of a farmer-owned Pennsylvania Family Farm Cooperative created through the efforts of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union and Penn State.

The proposed cooperative began a pilot program recently to market beef. The test program was initiated with the help of a USDA grant in excess of $60,000 administered through a program called the Family Farm Foundation with the Pennsylvania Farmers Union and Penn State.

According to Donald Fretts, Fayette-Greene multicounty ag and cooperative development agent, the pilot program was put in place after a multicounty survey conducted last year showed there was high interest among growers for a beef cooperative. In February, interested farmers met, in addition to representatives of the farmers union, Penn State extension, the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, and others. In April, another meeting was held, and a steering committee was formed.

Cattle producers assembled for an annual beef meeting filled out a survey at the Main Course banquet room on the Cedar Brook Golf Course in Belle Vernon. According to Fretts, approximately 50 beef cattle producers last winter out of 80 at the meeting turned in the survey, which proved that there was "individual interest in employing value-added marketing techniques to the beef produced," said Fretts.

The pilot project was trying to determine how a cooperative-driven beef chain marketing program could be devised to provide the "type of beef carcasses to suit the market," said Fretts.

That would include upper ⅔ Choice to low Prime.

In an article last week in Lancaster Farming, Westmoreland County Corrrespondent David Hiebert noted the proposed cooperative startup. The marketable product from the cooperative would be Keystone Certified Beef.

The steering committee of the cooperative, selected during a meeting in April, include co-chairs John Allen, Saxonburgh, co-chair with Don Gardner, Amity and Sam Hunt, Uniontown. Louise DiIsidoro, Fayette County, is secretary.

Already under the pilot program, the beef was sold to restaurants with the words "Certified Keystone Beef" on the menu. To be certified, the article noted, producers must meet the co-op standards in production and rail grading.

In October, the steering committee, according to Fretts, taste-tested a chuck roast and brisket precooked in cryovac packaging. Everyone, he noted, concluded the meat was very tender and delicious. "We also viewed the first two carcasses on the rail and the quality grading procedure was discussed," Fretts noted in a study sheet prepared Oct. 20.

For now, the test study will allow Fretts and the sponsors to develop criteria for a cooperative and find ways to market animals through a marketing chain. So far, the results of the pilot project "look very positive," Fretts said.

By early 1999, the study sheet indicated, the results of the test market will be finalized and recommendations will be made to develop the cooperative.

Two producers have been involved in the program. One is James Willis, a cattle and vegetable producer from Jefferson, Greene County, and the other is Bill Holchin, Uniontown, Fayette County. So far, 22 cattle have been marketed by the pilot program from the Willis farm. About five have been marketed from the Holchin farm, noted Fretts.

Willis said the southwest part of Pennsylvania is "depressed" when it comes to selling cattle. By marketing the cattle directly to the restaurants, "you eliminate the middleman," Willis said.

Bob Junk, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, came to the Willis farm in May to inspect and grade the cattle, according to Willis. The second time, a livestock specialist from Colorado came out to inspect the cattle. In September, a grader from Wyoming looked at the cattle, and eventually, 22 cattle were sold through the pilot program.

Most of the cattle sold on the Willis farm were Angus-Simmental crossbreds. The Angus, Willis noted, are "real good for the program — they grade higher, marble better, have a higher percentage of dressing, and finish out faster." The steers finish out at 1,250-1,300 pounds and the heifers at 1,100-1,150 pounds. Heifers graded better.

The price paid to Willis is around 10 percent more than auction, or about $80-$100 more per head. The price is a boon to Willis, because he noted that he's had, in the past, to haul cattle 120 miles away to Mercer. For the pilot program, the cattle had to be hauled only 25 miles away to a packer in Eighty Four.

The next step, noted Fayette County Agent Donald Fretts, is to hold a producer meeting and talk more about forming the cooperative. Farmers will have to invest money in the enterprise, he said. Before so, a business plan will have to developed and additional marketing logistics will have to be considered.

It won't be until mid-spring next year before any movement toward forming an actual cooperative would be made.

Right now, the Pennsylvania Beef Council remains interested in the prospects of the program. Until then, Fretts noted, it is up to the producers to decide.

Annual Maple Production School

TOWANDO (Bradford Co.) – The Maple Production School downlink from Cornell University will be conducted at the Bradford County extension office Saturday, Jan. 23. The program will begin promptly at 9:30 a.m.

Topics for discussion include:

The Cornell sugar maple research and extension program, the 1998 ice storm, its impact and recovery program in New York, sanitation and cleaning of sap collection tubing systems, innovative maple practices and processing concepts, summary and analysis of maple business planning, how to present a maple field trip program to school children, and a question and answer period.

The satellite program will end at 1:00 pm. required. There will be lunch provided. The cost of the program is $7 per person.

N.Y. Farm Bureau President Hails Compact Legislation

ALBANY, N.Y. — New York Farm Bureau President John Lincoln recently expressed gratitude to the passage of legislation that moves New York State one step closer toward joining the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact.

Mr. Lincoln, a dairy farmer from Ontario County, said, "It is a great day for the dairy farmers of this state. By passing this Compact legislation, the state Legislature sends the clear message that dairy farming in New York is vital to the overall economy, environment, and the needs of the dairy farmer willl not be forgotten.

"This legislation provides the opportunity for a financial safety net to be put in place for dairy farmers. Concern for consumer prices has been raised, but if New York was in the Compact today then consumers would not be paying one penny more for their milk," added the president of the nearly 30,000 member farm family lobbying trade association.

"I want to thank Gov. Pataki for his constant support of this legislation and the agricultural industry in general. The Governor is one of agriculture's strongest advocates, and we appreciate all of the work he does on our behalf.

"Senate Majority Leader Joe Bruno and Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Randy Kuhl both deserve thanks for their work in getting Compact legislation through the Senate. Special thanks also to Assembly man Bill Magee, who continued to speak to his colleagues about the Compact when others had turned their backs to the legislation.

"Finally, thanks to the members of each house who voted in favor of this legislation and Assembly Speaker Silver, who ultimately allowed the legislation to be moved to the Assembly floor for passage."

Lincoln went on to say that the legislation now moves to Congress, where approval is necessary for New York to join the Compact.

He hoped that United States Senators Mooynihan and Schumer, as well as the entire New York State House delegation will carry on the fight in Washington.

He stated, "Now is the time for our New York Congressional Delegation to embrace this legislation and carry it forward to passage on the federal level.

"This has been a hard fought battle for everyone. I have never been more proud of the members of New York Farm Bureau, many of whom left their farms several days this past year to impress upon state legislators just how important the Compact is to our future. This victory is one for all of agriculture. New York Farm Bureau's mission is to serve and strengthen agriculture — we certainly did that today."

New York Farm Bureau is the statewide lobbying/trade association that represents more than 29,260 member farm families. The organization is known to its members and the public as "The Voice of Agriculture." New York Farm Bureau is dedicated to solving economic and public policy issues challenging the agricultural industry.

Wayne DHIA Meeting Jan. 13

BETHANY (Wayne Co.) — The annual meeting and dinner of the Wayne County DHIA will be Wednesday, Jan. 13, starting at 12:30 p.m. at the Bethany Methodist Church Hall.

Tickets are also available from the Wayne County Cooperative Extension, Courthouse in Honesdale. The telephone number is (717) 253-5970 ext. 239.

The annual meeting will feature the presentation of yearly herd and individual cow production awards, herd management awards, high quality milk awards, and herd production awards for increased pounds of milk, butterfat, and protein. Also, the terms of three advisory committee members will expire this year. These committee members will need to be re-elected or new committee members elected to fill out this advisory committee.

John Castrogiovanni, Montrose, District 11 Pa. DHIA state director, will report on Pa. DHIA activities and programs. He will also share important details about the upcoming District 11 Pa. DHIA Annual Meeting, Jan. 21, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Mountain View Diner, Clifford.

The other featured speaker will be George Cudoc, newly hired consulting dairyman, on the Pa. DHIA staff. Cudoc will share important and interesting information pertaining to the new "Heifer '98" records and management program. In addition, he will also review and discuss the ongoing MUN (Milk Urea Nitrogen) Testing Program offered to Pa. DHIA member dairymen each month.

Area dairymen interested in attending this annual meeting and educational presentations plus participation in the roast beef and baked ham family style dinner are encouraged to make the reservations and to secure the necessary dinner tickets. Tickets for $8 per person and are available from Pa. DHIA technicians serving Wayne County affiliate dairy herds.

Del. Val to Sponsor Farm Show Trip

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Delaware Valley College will sponsor a trip to the 1999 Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg on Sunday, Jan. 10, departing from the college's security office at 8:30 a.m. and returning by 6 p.m.

The trip costs $15 for adults, $8 for children ages 5-12, and children under five are free. There is no cost of admission to the Farm Show. The trip is free to college faculty, staff, and students. Reservations are requested.

Grumbine Judges Reindeer On The Roof Of America

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — There is a Christmas season song with the lyric, "Up on the rooftop, click, click click ... ."

It never made much sense to Dennis Grumbine, state Farm Show director, he said.

At least not until the first week of September, when Grumbine followed up on an invitation and traveled to be livestock judge of the 1998 Alaska State Fair.

"I always thought the sound of hooves on the roof should sound more like, clump, clump, clump," he said. Or maybe "thud, thud, thud."

However, while he was on his first trip to the rooftop of the United States, being briefed on the specific characteristics sought in top quality reindeer, the Christmas season song suddenly made sense.

"Everybody's heard about 'Up on the rooftop ...,'" Grumbine said, "but I didn't realize that when they do set their ankle there is a distinct 'click.'

"You can hear it, and that's a sign of structural correctness," he said, recounting his personal amazement at the characteristic of the artic deer found in northern America, Europe and Asia.

Of course Santa wouldn't have anything but the most structurally correct reindeer pulling his sleigh.

"I found it terribly interesting about the reindeer, and of course I never judged reindeer before in my life," he said.

Raising them and breeding them for domestic use in Alaska has been going for sometime, with laws forbidding all but native Americans to raise them domestically.

Grumbine said the reindeer meat is commonly available in various forms — sausage, ground meat burgers, etc.

Reindeer have been hunted for sustenance and sport for years, and in certain parts of the northern Hemisphere they have been semi- to totally domesticated, and used for power, food, tool making, and for leather.

Much of the information on the species commonly available in the lower 48 United States portrays reindeer as a highly social wild deer that trecks across the tundra in great numbers on seasonal migration routes, constantly shadowed by packs of wolves.

Grumbine said he was impressed by the specie's level of calmness among humans. He said they were much calmer than the beef cattle. Both males and females sport antlers.

"They are very docile, very tame," he said. "They are not skittish or shy like you would think. What generation of domestication they were, I don't know, but when we selected the champion, with all the camera flashes and noise, they just stood there. They didn't move."

He selected a young female owned by Jill Webb of Wasilla as the Alaskan State Fair champion reindeer. Webb also exhibited the champion goat.

The champion beef was exhibited by Lori Kenleye of Palmer, while Keith Veirley of Wasilla showed the champion lamb, and Cole Jacobson of Palmer exhibited the champion swine.

According to Grumbine, he was very impressed by the Alaskan State Fair, with about 250 acres and a large exhibition facility (about 200 feet by 700 feet).

For three days he judged livestock and held informational seminars for the 4-H and FFA youth.

He explained that life in Alaska is very different compared to life in the Northeast United States, especially Pennsylvania.

Dennis and Barbara Grumbine stand at the entrance of the Alaska State Fair, with about 250 acres and a large exhibition facility (about 200 feet by 700 feet).

It's much more remote and distant between towns.

For example, he said that in Pennsylvania many 4-H youth might have to travel 20 minutes to attend a meeting, but in Alaska, many have to travel hundreds of miles to attend a meeting.

And just as most of the United States only gets information on Alaska through television and videotapes, the 4-H and FFA program members in Alaska depend upon videotapes to gain information on showing and exhibiting their project animals.

But, if anything, Grumbine seemed to rediscovered a truism about people's behavior and population density — people from less populated areas seem to appreciate other people more than those people who are constantly surrounded by other people.

"All of the people, while we were on our stay, were all very accommodating and very pleasant to work with," he said. "The 4-H leaders, there was a lot of dedication; and a lot of the kids traveled long distances, several hundred miles, to bring their animals to the show."

In addition to the reindeer, he said he judged about 200 hogs; about 250 lambs and sheep; about 50 beef cattle; about 30 dairy cattle (Holstein, Jersey, and Guernsey breeds); about 30 llamas; and about 200 goats in youth and open shows.

"I didn't know what kind of quality I would see, because it's so far away from (areas with large populations of domestic animals and genetic improvements), but I was fairly impressed," he said.

He said the three days were long days, beginning at 8 a.m. and ending at 8 p.m. or 9 p.m.

Although he started to judge mid-morning, he agreed to hold morning seminars for the 4-H and FFA youth and leaders, in order to give them first-hand instruction on what a judge seeks in the different species of livestock.

"We got involved in every species," he said, "I would bring out an animal tell them what I was looking for, and I also was giving seminars on showmanship.

"It may sound strange, but these kids don't get the opportunity to be exposed to showing, either as a participant or observer.

"Leaders try to get (video) tapes from the 'lower 48,' and at meet-

State Agriculture Teachers

with a forum to consider important issues facing agricultural education, as well as an opportunity to sharpen their teaching and leadership skills."

The keynote speakers included the Honorable Patricia McNeil, assistant secretary for vocational and adult education at the U.S. Department of Education, and the Honorable I. Miley Gonzalez, Ph.D., under secretary for research, education, and economics at the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

This meeting marked the 50th anniversary of NAAE, which organized as the National Vocational Agricultural Teachers' Association NVATA in 1948 at a meeting in Milwaukee. Special guest speakers included Eugene Lehrmann from Madison, Wis., who attended the meeting in Milwaukee when NVATA was established, and Sam Stenzel from Ottawa, Kansas, who was executive director of the organization 1978-1991. The delegates at the NVATA convention in 1997 changed the name of the organization to NAAE to better reflect modern-day agricultural education.

Conference attendees also participated in professional development workshops on current issues related to teaching improvements and technical agriculture. More than 20 different workships were available on topics including ag ed in alternative school settings, animal ethics, hydroponics, modular approaches to teaching, global agriculture, grant proposal writing, building teacher leaders, and balancing teachers' professional and personal lives.

The conference also included special award and recognition programs and business sessions that allowed state delegates to address organizational issues.

The NAAE mission is "professionals providing agricultural education for the global community through visionary leadership, advocacy, and service." NAAE has more than 7,650 members nationwide, with offics located in Alexandria, Va., near the nation's capital.

Gerald Reichard, left, retired agriculture teacher from Chambersburg and current executive secretary from the Pennsylvania Association of agricultural educators, received an honorary life membership from the national association for his efforts on behalf of agriculture teachers. Forrest Jones, representing an insurance company, presents the award with Mike Cox, newly elected president-elect of the national association looking on.

York DHIA Recognizes Management, Production Achievements

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

THOMASVILLE (York Co.) — Several of the county's top producing herds were honored during the annual York County Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) banquet, held Nov. 19 at Thomasville Fire Hall.

The Ramsey S. Cooper Jr. dairy herd, managed by Scott and April Cooper, snagged four top honors, placing high overall in the county in milk and protein, as well as claiming the high 305-day individual lactation milk and protein honors.

Cooper's Delta-area Holstein herd wrapped up the 1998 test year with a 27,843-pound milk average on 76 head, along with a protein production average of 872 pounds.

High milk record honors for the year went to their Deena cow, finishing her 305-day lactation with 39,573 milk and earning the protein award as well with 1,252 pounds.

The Cooper herd claimed three more of the five top places in protein production with Raven, 1,181 pounds protein for second place; Marissa, with 1,099 pounds protein, in fourth place; and Elsa, fifth with 1,093 protein and third high in milk at 36,950.

Third high individual cow in protein was Sal, from the Smyser's Richlawn herd, York, completing a 305-day protein tally of 1,116 pounds.

The Calvin Hostetter family's herd also captured several honors during the annual presentations.

Their Dover operation took top spot in the herd management recognition, scoring 143 points with their mixed herd, while their Holstein herd was third high with 125 points. The mixed herd was also low somatic cell herd in the county, with an SCC average of 80,000. Hostetter's Holstein herd was second in SCC low count at 135,000.

Other top herd management honors went to Glen and Dawn Anderson, York, second with 141 points; Ed and Carolyn Calhoun, Glen Rock, with 121 points, and Wayshar Farm, Glenville, with 114 points.

Sharing high honors in the county for overall herd production were Smyser's Richlawn Farms, York, with 27,763 pounds milk; Walk-Le Holsteins, Thomasville, third, with 27,682 milk; Leonard Greek, Delta, fourth, with 25,625 milk; and Ed and Carolyn Calhoun, Glen Rock, in fifth place with 25,350 milk.

Overall herd protein averages were similar, with Walk-Le second with 864 pounds, Smyser's Richlawn third with 827 pounds, Leonard Greek, fourth with 819 pounds and Rutters, York, in fifth place with 803 protein.

In the 305-day milk records, Earl Furhrman, Hanover, was second with Orchid, producing 38,433 pounds milk; Rutter's in fourth, with Gidget, 36,555 pounds milk; and Smyser's Richlawn with Rainbow, 36,313 pounds milk.

Smyser's also had the high animal in lifetime production with their herd member Jane, completing 14 lactations totaling 335,603 pounds milk. Second was Lynn Wolf, Abbottstown, with his 12-lactation cow, Apple, having produced a total of 264,910 milk. Both cows are no longer in their respective herds.

Third in Somatic Cell Count in the county was Earl Fuhrman, Farm 2, at 142,000; Ed and Carolyn Calhoun, fourth, with 158,000; and Leaspring Farm fifth, with 194,000.

Most improved herd in protein, over 600 pounds, was Wayshar Farm, Glenville, with a 139-pound increase to 785 pounds. Fourth was the herd of Glen and Dawn Anderson, York, increasing 104 pounds to a herd average in protein of 785; while the Dennis Myers herd, Glenville, was fifth with an increase of 101 pounds, to 679 pounds total.

In the under-600 protein category, improvement awards went to Kenneth Roxroth with an 81-pound, second to Larry Robinson, 53-pound increase; Perrydell Farms, 52-pound increase; John Dietz, 28-pound increase; and Willow Grove Farm, 25-pound increase.

Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association Presents Awards

Digesters," and the "Pennsylvania Governor's Award for Energy Self-Sufficient Farm." Waybright was also appointed by the Pennsylvania governor to the first board of Pennsylvania Energy Development Authority. Today the farm includes three digesters, and excess electricity is sold to the local power company.

A leader in conservation efforts, owners have installed 800,000 feet of drainage tile on the farms, as well as 17 miles of diversion ditches.

Waybright was one of twelve people to be selected by, then vice-president, George Bush, to advise him on agricultural matters for his presidential campaign. He has been guest speaker at numerous events, including World Dairy Expo, State Dairy days in Maine, Farm-City banquets, as well as service and church groups. In 1997 he was a presenter at the North America Silage Conference in Hershey and also was a speaker at the Industry and University Dairy Seminar In Wisconsin.

From the beginning of their dairy business, Elaine and Ray Sollenberger have been quick to adopt new practices and programs. They were early supporters of the American Jersey Cattle Association's Project Equity, which supported adoption of component pricing of milk and the association's Total Performance Evaluation Program.

In 1980 Elaine saw the need for a vehicle to communicate with Pennsylvania Jersey breeders, and she revived the PA Jerseyletter, which had not been published for nearly 25 years. She continued to edit this newsletter for the next five years.

At the same time, the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club began to sponsor a trip to the All-American Jersey Show in Louisville, Kentucky, for juniors. Elaine quickly volunteered and made the journey to Louisville with the youth. She chaperoned and served as cook for the Pennsylvania youth exhibitors and other Pennsylvania participants.

Several Ralaine Jerseys have been top sellers at Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association sales. The herd has at various times also been recognized among the high producing herds in the state. Their cows have won awards at local dairy shows and fairs.

From 1983 to 1988 Elaine represented the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association on the board of directors for the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show. A highlight of her career was in 1989 when she and Ray received the Distinguished Service Award from the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association.

Elaine has also been an active community leader. In 1981 she headed the capital fund drive to raise money to construct a multi-purpose 4-H building at the county fairgrounds. From 1969 to 1980 she served on the Everett Area School Board, six years as president. In 1996 she was appointed to finish an unexpired term as Bedford County Commissioner.

Elaine has also filled numerous positions in her chruch, including district moderator, conference moderator, and from 1982 to 1987 she served on the general board and pension boards of the Church of the Brethen.

Although officially retired, Elaine continues to be involved with the work on the farm on a daily basis.

Wilcox received an associate degree in Biological Science at Jamestown Community College before completing his undergraduate work at Cornell University. He went to work as an assistant agent in Erie County with responsibilities in the dairy and agronomy program. He also found time to complete a Master of Science degree in Dairy Science at Penn State. He has devoted 27 years to the dairy industry of northwestern Pennsylvania.

His extension responsibilities have included work in dairy nutrition, dairy herd management, dairy business management, dairy policy, animal health, and animal housing. During the 1970's, Wilcox devoted much of his time to production issues, such as quality forage, milking systems, and mastitis control. In the 1980's he initiated milking schools and nutrition schools, and emphasized forage testing, ration balancing, and milking system evaluation. In the 1990's his emphasis changed to dairy farm management and marketing. This change corresponds to the changing dairy industry and changing needs of the clientele he serves.

While Wilcox has always looked for new programs to introduce, he has continued to support traditional activities in the county such as dairy days, dairy farm management tours, and dairy discussion groups. He has supported the 4-H dairy program at both the county and regional levels.

Wilcox is an active member of both the American Dairy Science Association and the National Mastitis Council. His enthusiasm, knowledge base, and devotion to the dairy industry make him an excellent extension educator.

The evening program featured Dr. David Hettinga, vice president of corporate research, Land O'Lakes, Inc., who talked on the subject of non-traditional dairy products. The program was supported by the attendees of the Dairy Futures Conference, and 200 people attended the banquet. Bev Minor was the chairperson.

Hayes Announces Symposium

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. recently announced that the "1999 Symposium on Agriculture in the 21st Century" will be Feb. 24 - 25 at the Harrisburg East Holiday Inn.

"This symposium will showcase the tremendous opportunities available to Pennsylvania agriculture with an eye on expanding markets and economic success," Hayes said. "The symposium presents an excellent forum for us to share ideas about the new opportunities in agriculture and to develop a cooperative framework for continue success into the next century."

The statewide symposium is part of the efforts of Gov. Ridge and Agriculture Secretary Hayes to strengthen and expand domestic and international markets for Pennsylvania's agricultural products.

It will feature numerous topics impacting the future of the agricultural industry, including food needs around the world, agriculture in public policy, and the use of new technologies.

The symposium is a cooperative effort of the Agriculture Department, the House and Senate agriculture committees, the Pennsylvania State University, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Symposium speakers also will present ideas on the areas of nutrient management, order control and pesticide management.

For more information or to register for the symposium, contact Gary R. Peterson of Pennsylvania State, at (814) 865-8301

1998 Probably Will Be Northeast's Warmest Year On Record

Through Dec. 21, the region's temperatures in the month of December averaged 38.6 degrees, or 11.1 degrees above normal, according to Keith Eggleston, senior climatologist at the center.

Eggleston gives 1998 "a 96 percent chance" of breaking the 45-year-old record for the warmest year in the 12-state Northeast region.

"Temperatures for the rest of the month now need to average 10.6 degrees or more below normal for us "not" to break the record," he says.

He notes that temperatures this cold during the final two weeks of December occur only once every 25 years on average, and that has happened only twice in recent history, in 1983 and 1989. But, an Arctic blast is headed toward the Northeast and will inevitably lower the month's current average temperature.

"I don't think the cold front will kill our chances of breaking the temperature record for the year, although this front is going to bring below-normal temperatures," says Eggleston. "It's not going to be cold enough, long enough."

The year came in like a lamb. January averaged 7.8 degrees warmer than normal (based on a 30-year average) , warm enough to make it the ninth warmest January on record. Next, the warmest February on record in the Northeast came with an average temperature departure of 8 degrees above normal. In all, nine out of the first 11 months were warmer than normal.

Three months -- January, February and May -- were among the top 10 warmest on record for those specific months. May's average temperature was 4.6 degrees above normal, making it the sixth warmest May in the region. Only June and July were cooler than normal. June averaged 0.1 degrees cooler than normal, and July followed at 0.4 degrees cooler than normal.

The Northeast's warmest December occurred in 1923, when the averagetemperature was 35.5 degrees. Through Dec. 21 this year, the average temperature was 3.1 degrees above the record.

Grumbine Judges Reindeer On The Roof Of America

ings they'll show these tapes as to how shows are conducted."

He said the experience was rewarding because the youth and adults were especially eager to learn, even though it was early in the morning and they also had a long day ahead of them.

"One morning we got started before 8 a.m. and those kids were all out there, attentive. You didn't hear any rumblings," he said.

"You could just see the intensity in their eyes when they were showing their animals," he said.

Grumbine said that since serving as director of the state Farm Show, he has eliminated most of his judging activities, especially within the state. He said his schedule and official capacity don't allow him to judge.

He said he's even turned down some opportunities to judge in some Mid Western states. "I've got my hands full," he said. "I had some opportunities, but this was one that I thought would be kind of unique."

The panoramic and wild beauty of Alaska struck him hard, and he had included four days of additional vacation time to spend with his wife Barbara, as part of the trip. They traveled around parts of the state.

"It's a different existance, but it's beautiful country — the wildlife. To drive along the road and see Dall sheep looking down on your automobile," he said, not finishing the sentence.

"The grizzly bear and black bear and elk, they are just all over the place. We went to one place where salmon were swimming (upstream on a spawning run from the ocean). It was wall-to-wall fish. There was hardly room for water. What you see on television doesn't do it justice."

He walked around the Alaska Fairgrounds and got to look at the other exhibits, although he just missed the big day for the Alaska State Fair's big contest — the largest cabbage head contest with $2,000 for first prize. About 100 entries were expected.

But Dennis said he did see some cabages displayed as part of the Alaska State FairSla Fairr. "They were as big as a wheelbarrow!"

The flowers, fruits and vegetables were phenominal, he said. "There were carrots as big as 5-gallon buckets and the red beets," he said, dropping off to explain, "Around here, if you get a vegetable that big it gets woody, it generally isn't good."

He said the deep soil and long days with almost 24 hours of light during the short growing season seem to produce tremendous growth in fruit, vegetable and flower.

"The flowers and vegetables were huge," he said, "I never saw anything like it in my life."

He said that while he and Barbara were walking around they saw a lot of hanging baskets of planted flowers, also a common ornament in Pennsylvania.

Whereas in Pennsylvania extremely careful attention may result in a hanging basket of flowers with a 3- to 4 foot circumference. However, hanging baskets in Alaska were commonly six-foot around. "Barabara and I kept remarking about the flower and vegetable gardens, as to how they looked (with the oversize produce)," he said.

Grumbine wasn't the only judge at the fair. He said the rabbit and poultry judge was brought in from California, while the horse judge came in from New Mexico.

"They have a lot of horses," Grumbine said. "It's big business because of all the pack animals used for guiding and hunting." He said most of the livestock exhibitors also own horses they lease out for packing or hunting.

While not comparing state fairs, Grumbine said the Alaska Fair is certainly worth a visit once in a life.

He said many of the different fair foods were reindeer meat and salmon.

There is a water-fountain statue of gold miners in the Fairgrounds, and well-constructed and designed buildings.

He said he noticed that a lot of farm equipment is generally not available, and what is available is older and high priced. He said he learned that the Western states generally don't have the right type of equipment to sell to farmers in Alaska, because the Western states's agriuclture, including California's, generally calls for expensive, large production equipment.

Grumbine said that it appears that it should be possible for Pennsylvania equipment dealers who have what is needed in Alaska to ship equipment directly and be able to provide farmers in Alaska with more of the smaller farm equipment they need.

He also noticed that all automobiles were 4-wheel-drive.

That was in September.

However, he also learned that all those automobiles that were at the Alaska Fair and those he saw on the roads are probably in storage for the winter.

"I think by now (the cars) are all parked and (the residents) are using snowmobiles," he said. "I don't know how many snowmobile manufacturers and dealers I saw exhibiting, but there were a lot.

"They don't plow roads there, so they depend on snowmobiles."

Another thing that impressed Grumbine was the diversity of people attending the Alaska State Fair.

He said that for the state the fair is a big event and just about everyone who can attends.

There were such ironic displays as a steel drum player creating sounds more characteristic of the Bahamas.

There were such unusual groups, such as Orthodox Russians who traveled to Alaska for the fair.

"There were a lot of Russians at the fair. They visit the fair every year," Grumbine said. "I thought, 'The Russians had a long trip!' But they really didn't.

"I couldn't communicate, but it was terribly interesting, and it seems like everybody gets to the state fair. It a major event."

The site of the fair is in Palmer, which is north of Anchorage, and "... was originally homesteaded and farmed by disenchanted 1913 Nelchina Gold Rush prospectors," according to a centennial celebration publication.

The area is contained within the Matanuska-Sustina Borough, a small portion of Alaska, but huge compared to Pennsylvania standards for a borough.

The borough is the third largest gold producer in Alaska and its modern history is entwined in gold and coal mining, and homesteading. It includes Denali Park, the Grumbines visited during one of the travel days.

The town of Wasilla is where the Iditarod starts. It's remote and ruggedly beautiful as is the entire area. And the youth who are there are working at least as hard as any other 4-Her or FFA member to become better stewards and better at husbandry.

Grumbine said he would like to go back someday. An avid hunter, he said that his trip as livestock judge coincided with the first week of moose season in Alaska, and perhaps the next time he visits he'll be able to hunt moose.

But then, his wife Barbara asked him if Hawaii had a state fair, and if they needed a livestock judge.

'All I Want For Christmas Is Daddy To Get Better'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — When Janie and Dale Martin's six-year-old son was asked what he wanted for Christmas last year, he answered, "All I want is for my daddy to get better."

It wasn't a gift that came in time for last year's Christmas. It wasn't a gift that seemed possible—ever—if you looked at the circumstances.

But this Christmas season, the couple and their three children, Becky, 10; Matthew, 8; and Michael, 6, are joyfully celebrating the wonderful gift of life together.

She turned him to his side to ease his breathing and brokenly sobbed, "Dale, we need you. We love you, please hang in there."

To look at this attractive picture-perfect family, a stranger would never guess that they had endured one of the most traumatic events that can happen to a family.

Thirty-eight-year-old Dale is the picture of health—not even closely recognizable as the same fellow in last year's pictures where he was swollen and heavily sedated from steriods used to combat a brain tumor.

Inklings of trouble surfaced in late summer 1997. Dale felt a constant tiredness. At first he attributed his exhausion to the constant demands of dairy farming. When he contracted bronchities, he mentioned his exhausion to the doctor. The doctor did some blood work but everything showed up normal and they agreed not to do further testing.

One month later, on Oct. 11, 1997, the Martins' world turned upside down. That evening they had returned from a fundraising supper at the local firehall. Several family members dropped by to visit.

Janie was in the kitchen when Dale's aunt burst into the house and yelled, "Call 911."

Janie, who is a nurse, rushed outside to find Dale lying on the ground.

"I wasn't prepared for what I saw," Janie recalls.

Dale was unconscious and barely breathing. She thought he must have had a heart attack. She turned him to his side to ease his breathing and brokenly sobbed, "Dale, we need you. We love you, please hang in there."

By the time the ambulance arrived, Dale started to blink his eyes.

In the emergency room, Dale was alert. But the doctor said that healthy men his age do not fall over for no reason. He ordered a CAT scan.

When the doctor reported that Dale's brain showed a lot of swelling, Janie reasoned that it was probably from hitting his head when he fell.

But it wasn't that simple.

The doctor suspected a tumor. He was right. It was malignant with long fingers, rendering it inoperable.

A week later, when doctors attempted to bring Dale out of the coma, he didn't respond and the brain swelling increased.

Before a biopsy was conducted, the Martins's pastor, deacon, family members, and close friends gathered around Dale for an anointing service.

After the biopsy, Dale was struck with severe headaches. This was not the result of the biopsy but from the pressure of the swelling, Janie said.

Different drugs were administered but nothing relieved the pain. Another CAT scan was ordered. By this time, Dale was unresponsive and his breathing was shallow.

Dale was hooked up to a breathing machine and a "bolt" was inserted in his head to monitor the pressure in his brain.

The CAT scan showed that the brain swelling had increased.

The doctor asked Janie to consent to putting Dale into a drug-induced coma. He explained this would allow his body to be at a complete rest to bring down the brain swelling.

Although Dale was put into a coma, the desired results did not follow. It was a roller coaster ride as his condition deteriorated than rallied than deteriorated.

A week later, when doctors attempted to bring Dale out of the coma, he didn't respond and the brain swelling increased.

The neurologist told Janie that Dale might never come out of the coma. They could risk an operation or stop the machines and see how his body responds.

"Some people accuse doctors of being uncaring, but we had so many doctors who showed us genuine compassion," Janie said. "The doctor had tears in his eyes when he told me. And that wasn't the only time they showed their emotions."

The couple's church organized an around-the-clock prayer chain.

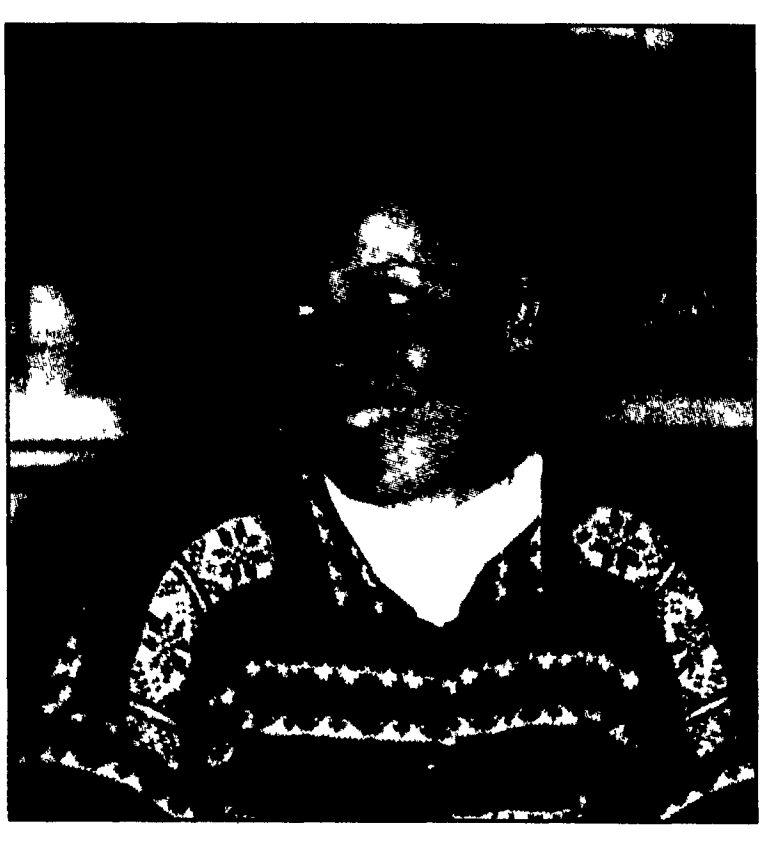
While Dale was in a coma state, Janie stayed by his side night and day. Friends and family took turns spending the night in the hospital so that she could sleep a few hours.

"Lots of prayer saw me through. I say that very seriously and not haphazardly," Janie said. "It was prayer that got me through. Sometimes I'd fall into bed so over-

(Turn to Page B14)

This is the Christmas that Dale and Janie Martin thought they would never have together with their children Becky, 10; Matthew, 8; and Michael, 6. Last year's Christmas is vague for Dale who was suffering from a malignant brain tumor. After extensive radiation and physical therapy, Dale is farming full-time and enjoying family life again.

"I was told that I have six months to 40 years to live," Dale said of his prognosis. "I have passed the six month mark, so I figure I have another 39½ years."



"Dale has always had a sense of humor and laughing really helps us cope," Janie said. "If we get angry, we don't hold a grudge for long. Put in perspective, what's the big deal?"

NEW! New Holland TND/TNS Tractors 42 to 62 PTO hp

Customer driven design

TND/TND tractors have the features customers say they need. These tractors outperform and outmaneuver all others in the three-cylinder class. Plus they're loaded with comfort and convenience usually found on much bigger tractors.

Exclusive SuperSteer™ FWD axle makes TNS tractors the most maneuverable all purpose tractors available.

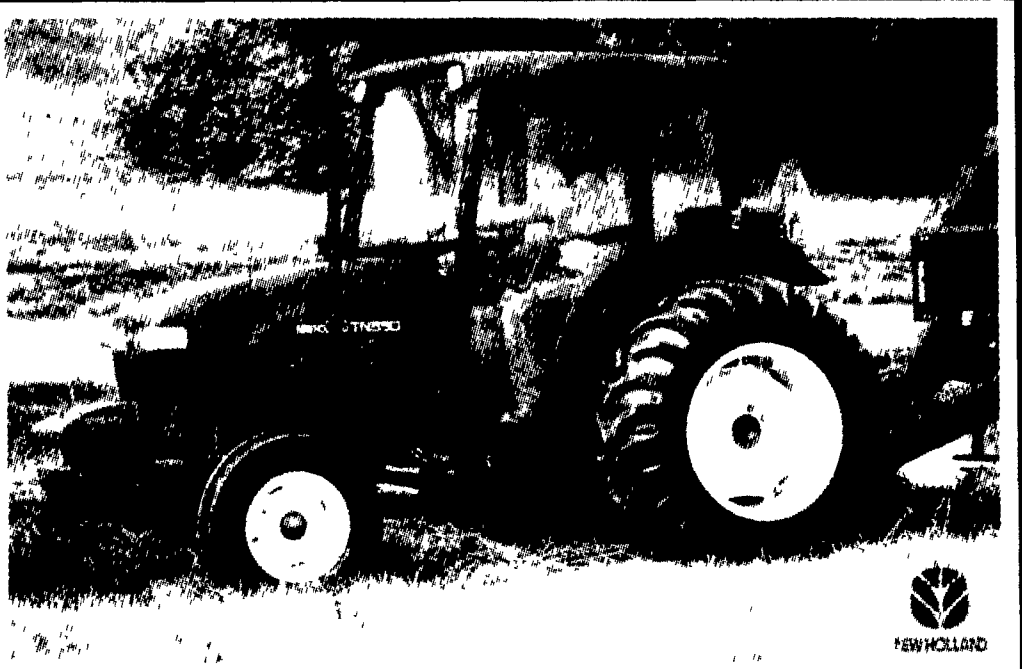
Exclusive Traction Management System (TNS tractors only) automatically engages FWD when and only when you need it.

Four wheel differential lock is electro-hydraulically engaged on TNS tractors for maximum power to ground performance.

Comfortable cab is suspended and pressurized, shielding the operator from vibration, noise and dirt. Heater and A/C, two doors, tilt/telescoping steering, front and rear washers and wipers, and a best-in-class lighting package are standard. Excellent visibility and an overall height as low as 85.1" lets you go places competitive cab tractors can't.



Boomer™ has tightest turnaround

Cut the wheel on a Boomer compact tractor and BOOM... it turns on a dime, up to 50% less than other compacts.

- With Supersteer™ enjoy greater maneuverability
- Sensitrack™ clutch senses turns and is easy on turf
- Innovative styling means high visibility and easy of operation
- Comfort-Plus™ deck applies ergonomic design for greater operator comfort

See Boomer now!

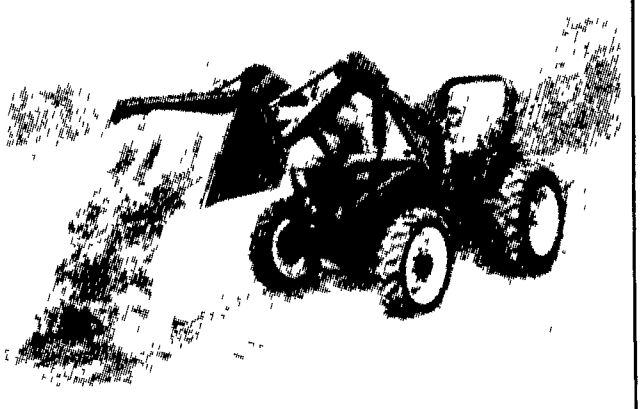
The left-hand, column-mounted shuttle control on New Holland 40 to 62 PTO hp tractors with 8x8 and 16x8 transmissions provides convenient shifting of the best, fully-synchronized shuttle in this horsepower class. Shuttling is controlled with the left hand, leaving your right hand free to operate the loader

NEW HOLLAND



Excellent in the field - and on the farm

New Holland 70- to 90-PTO-hp tractors feature a 16x16 Pulse Command™ transmission with push-button power shifting within each of four speed groups Speeds are evenly spaced 18% apart, with nine speeds in the usual two- to seven-mph working range Plenty of gear overlap makes range shifting unnecessary most of the time.

The shuttle lets you pull out from a dead stop or change direction without clutching An optional, electro-hydraulically engaged creeper is also available

"I" Messages

This is the time of year many of us begin to think about "self-improvement" projects. The beginning of a new year has a way of letting us start new or improve skills in some areas of our lives. One of those areas is communicating with our family, friends, and co-workers.

Effective communication involves many skills that can be learned or practiced. When you have problem with another person or when you're concerned with someone's behavior, "I message" communication can be valuable. Here are some tips from the Penn State Extension publication "Skills for Working Together" to help you understand I messages.

"You make me angry"

"It's all your fault!"

"You never listen." These statements are door slammers; they shut off communication.

Why?

Think of how it feels to be the receiver of such messages. You'd probably feel threatened and act defensive. And threatened people lash out. They may say things they will later regret. This type of "you message" placed blame, increasing tension, anxiety and guilt.

"You messages" are ineffective for several reasons:

- They label the receiver instead of describing your feelings.
- They put the receiver on the defensive.
- They create inhibitions and closed behavior.
- They build distrust.

Promoting Positive Communication— "I" Messages

"I" messages promote positive communications, which in turn fosters healthy interpersonal relationships. Serving to identify the speaker's own feelings, "I" messages have two parts: Feelings – "I was angry and disappointed . . ." Behaviors or Events – "when I arrived at the meeting on time and no one else was there."

Here are two example statements that show the relationship between feelings and behaviors or events:

- I felt relaxed and warm when I saw a familiar face this morning.
- I was worried when I arrived at the meeting on time and no one else was there.

The first step in sending "I" messages about unacceptable behavior is to become aware of your own feelings in particular situations and then recognize that you "own" the feeling or behavior, that the behavior is unacceptable because your find it unacceptable.

How does the unacceptable behavior make you feel? Worried? Irritated? Uncomfortable?

When you admit to owning a feeling, you are not blaming or judging others. You do not tell others how to change their behavior. Instead, you explain how you feel about the behavior to the person who has behaved unacceptably in your estimation.

"I" messages are not intended to perform communication miracles, but they can lead to more positive and effective communications in interpersonal situations. "I" messages are effective because:

- They place responsibility with the sender of the message.
- They provide information about the other person's behavior without evaluating it.
- They promote open communication, build trust, create empathy, and facilitate understanding between the sender and receiver.

When I Messages Should Be Used

"I" messages communicate how the other person's actions affect you. "I" messages are especially effective when used:

- In conflicts (I feel sad and discouraged when we can't seem to agree.")
- To encourage change ("I feel excited about the possibilities of this line of action.")
- To give constructive feedback ("I feel uncomfortable with the lack of an agenda.)

You can clarify a problem without putting the other person down if you describe your feelings rather than evaluate his or her actions.

"I" messages are designed to keep communication open. They express the primary feelings of the sender and state the problem (event) or unacceptable behavior. "I" messages are always positive and should not be confused with accusatory remarks that begin with "I."

Learning to use "I" messages takes time and practice. We can all improve communications by learning to identify what we are feeling and why.

Who Is America's Oldest Worker?

MECHANICSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Green Thumb, Inc., the country's oldest and largest provider of mature-worker training and employment, is asking for help in its search to discover America's Oldest Worker before the December 31 deadline. The winner of next year's title, as well as outstanding older workers from every state, will be announced on March 24, 1999 at the Prime Time Awards Gala, National Building Museum, in Washington, D.C.

The 1998 winner, 103-year-old Milton Garland, still works for the same firm—the Frick Company of Waynesboro, Pennsylvania, a subsidiary of York International—that gave him his first paycheck of $75 a month in 1920.

A World War I Veteran and holder of 40 refrigeration patents, he is an engineer who kept America's WWII fighting machine rolling on rubber tires. An avid Hershey Bear's fan, he "wouldn't miss a home game," especially since he supervised the application engineering for the Hershey Skating Rink where the Bears play. Garland has two children, seven grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren, and one great-great grandson.

Retire? He admits the word simply isn't in his vocabulary. "I consider my job a privilege. I never want to stop working," he adds, "because I'm still learning." His assignments at Frick include coordination of international trademark registrations and training of their engineering staff.

Anyone who knows a potential candidate for the America's Oldest Worker contest is encouraged to contact Green Thumb's Pennsylvania State Office at 5010 Lenker Street, Mechanicsburg, PA 17055; phone 1-800-854-1578; or via e-mail jobready@greenthumbpa.org.

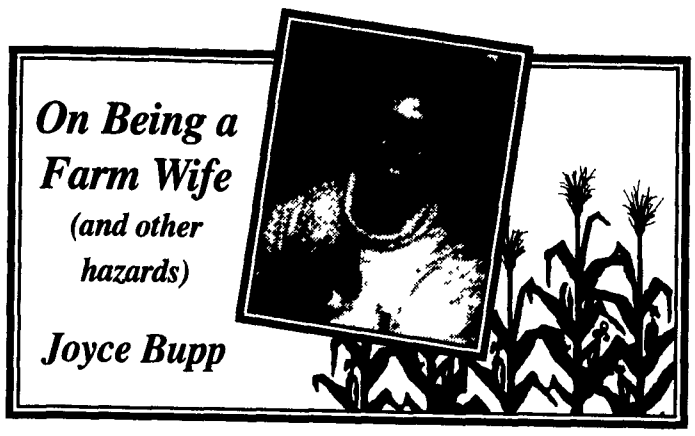
Winner To Be Announced In Jan. 16 Issue Of Lancaster Farming



(I recently unearthed this ditty, results of which have not been pretty. I'll try once more, I'll really strive, with '99 set to arrive. . .)

RESOLUTIONS

This time has come, hits once each year
To gaze into our lifestyle mirror
And vow again to make amends
And head myself toward better trends.
More exercise will keep me fitter
I'll start — once we corral this critter.
And finish stacking bales of hay
And moving feed that's in the way.
Those piles of mail accumulating
Must be dealt with. No hesitating!
Correspondence, checks and bills,
Papers, books, ads for frills.
I'll work that stack. Attack! Revamp!
If I can find just one good stamp.
I'll pledge anew to banish dust
From nooks and crannies. Clean—or bust!
Shine, scrub, vacuum, neat as a pin
Until The Farmer strides on in.
All garden weeds will have to go
To highlight each neat, perfect row.
I'll till, I'll pull, I'll tend that patch
And banish pesky bugs that hatch.
The dairy house I'll hose and scrub
Polish up the wash-vat tub
Clean the milk lines. Sweep the alleys.
Keep careful tabs on milk weight tallies.
Our records will be up-to-date.
All, checks, bills, postings never late.
My life will be so organized,
Efficient, thorough, energized.
Whate'er they ask, I'll do their biddin'
Oh. . . what the heck! Who am I kiddin'?
HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Beef Council Teams With SYSCO

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Beef Council recently teamed up with IBP Sales Manager Rick Fetrow to present a beef education program to 100 SYSCO marketing associates (MA's) at SYSCO's Central Pennsylvania headquarters in Harrisburg.

SYSCO is North America's largest food service marketer and distributor. Topics covered included inspection, grading, food safety, aging, understanding markets and value differences in beef cuts. The seminar followed SYSCO's roll out of several new products using the chuck and round that were developed with the help of National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) checkoff funds.

Beef seminars of this nature are conducted throughout the year by Carrie Bryant, PBC promotions director for several foodservice groups across Pennsylvania. If you would like more information on this and other programs conducted as part of the $1 per head Beef Checkoff program, contact the PBC office at 717-939-7000.

New Year's Fare Said To Bring Health And Prosperity

According to tradition, what you eat on New Year's Day could influence your life for better or worse in the coming year.

Pennsylvania Dutch descendants pass on the saying that pork and sauerkraut is the dish that brings wealth.

Although common sense dictates that gaining wealth isn't as simple as eating pork and sauerkraut on the first day of the year, the traditional dish is enjoyed by many Lancaster Countians on that day.

Eating blackeyes and rice for New Year's luck is held by many Southerns, where blackeyes are thought to hold the power to one's destiny. Around the world, beans like blackeyes are said to represent coins in the pocket—true good fortune.

Rice is a symbol of prosperity, abundance, and good luck. Rice is served in a savory Hoppin' John in the South, but in Minnesota and others areas of Scandinavian-American heritage, rice pudding is a perennial part of holiday cuisine. Cooked with one almond, custom says the person who finds it will marry within a year.

In many cultures, the pig also symbolizes good fortune, because a family who owns a pig is guaranteed to eat well. Pigs represent moving heartily into the upcoming year, which is symbolized by the common movement of the pig—forward with its snout to the ground.

As a result, many New Years meals are centered around great tasting cuts of pork. (It's a great bargain in supermarkets also).

We laugh as these ridiculous beliefs, but there are many healthy reasons to serve these foods year-round.

• One of the most nutritionally complete foods, blackeyes are packed with protein, complex carbohydrates, and other essential vitamins and minerals. Blackeyes are also the best vegetable source for folate, an important B vitamin that can help reduce the risk of heart disease, certain birth defects, and several types of cancer.

• Rice is a staple food for two-thirds of the world's population. A wholesome and nutritious cereal grain, rice has qualities that make it ideally suited for special dietary needs. Rice contains only 103 calories per half-cup serving, is cholesterol-, sodium-, and fat-free, is a complex carbohydrate, is non-allergenic, and is easy to digest.

The most widely eaten meat in the world, lean pork is not only flavorful, but also part of a healthful diet, with 31 percent less fat than 10 years ago. With less fat per serving than chicken, roast pork loin provides your family with a great-tasting source of protein, iron, and other important minerals.

The National Pork Producers Council is your official source for pork preparation and hundreds of delicious recipes. Log onto www.nppc.org each week for new pork recipes, seasonal menu suggestions, helpful tips and brochure offers.

For more rice recipes, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to "Meals in Minutes," c/o USA Rice; P.O. Box 740121; Houston, TX 77274.

Want more ways to cook with blackeyes and other beans? Order "Beans Beans Beans: California's Finest Recipes," a cookbook featuring 86 unique healthy bean recipes. Send a check for $8 made payable to California Dry Beand Advisory Board, 531-D North Alta Ave., Dinuba, CA 93618.

BONELESS PORK LOIN ROAST WITH HERBED PEPPER RUB

Celebrate a tradition of old with contemporary flavors. A succulent roast is made simple with an easy-to-prepare herbed pepper rub.

Herbed Pepper Rub:

2 tablespoons cracked black pepper

2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

2 teaspoons dried basil

2 teaspoons dried rosemary

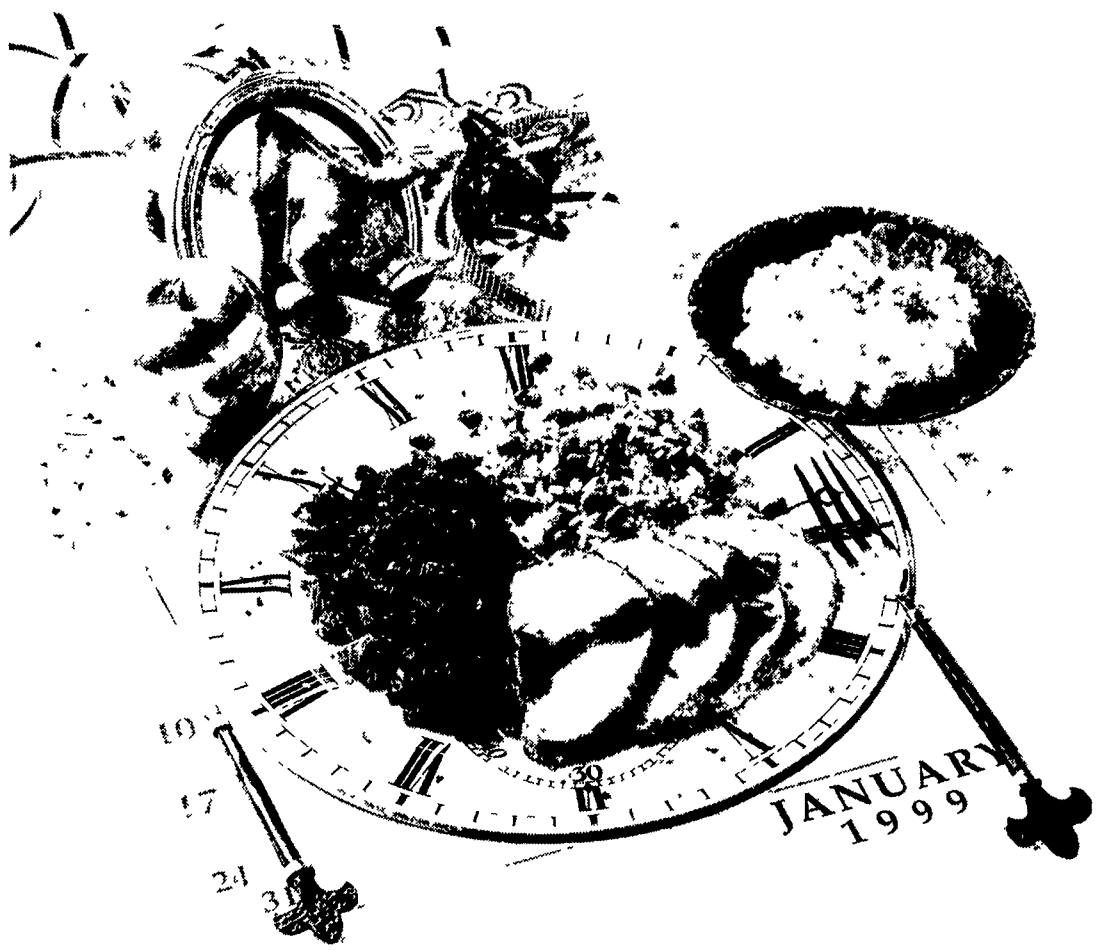
2 teaspoons dried thyme

¼ teaspoon garlic powder

¼ teaspoon salt

Pat pork dry with paper towel. In small bowl, combine well all rub ingredients and apply to all surfaces of pork roast. Place roast in shallow pan in 350 degree oven for 1¼ hours, until internatl temperature, measured with a meat thermometer registers 155 degrees. Remove roast from oven; let stant 5-10 minutes before slicing.

Serves 6-8, with leftovers.



According to tradition, what you eat on New Year's Day could influence your life for better or worse. While we shrug off such claims, most families have favorite foods they eat on the first day of the year.

HOPPIN' JOHN

There are as many variations of this Southern specialty as there are cooks. This version blends traditional ingredients with peppers, liquid smoke, and spices to kick up the flavor and heat.

1 cup dry blackeyes

Water

1 cup chopped onion

¾ cup sliced celery

½ cup chopped green bell pepper

1 small jalapeno chili, seeded, chopped

1 teaspoon minced garlic

1 tablespoon olive oil

¾ teaspoon dried oregano leaves

½ teaspoon dried thyme leaves

1 bay leaf

3 cups chicken broth

¾ cup uncooked rice

1-2 teaspoons liquid smoke

Salt, black pepper, and cayenne pepper, to taste

Hot pepper sauce, to taste

Unlike other varieties of dry beans, blackeyes don't require extensive presoaking. Rinse and sort dry blackeyes and place in large soup pot; cover beans by 2 inches with water and heat to boiling. Boil, uncovered, 3 to 4 minutes. Drain beans and rinse.

In large saucepan, saute onion, celery, bell pepper, jalapeno chile and garlic in oil 5 minutes. Stir in herbs; saute 1 to 2 minutes.

Add hot washed blackeyes and chicken broth to saucepan; heat to boiling. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 25 minutes. Add rice and simmer 20 minutes or until blackeyes are rice are tender and broth is almost absorbed. Season to taste with liquid smoke, salt, black pepper, cayenne, and hot pepper sauce. Makes 8 servings (about ¾ cup each).

Freezer great place for leftover cookies

I always seem to have leftover cookies after the holidays. Can I freeze them?

You sure can You can freeze cookies for up to three months in a cold (0 degrees) freezer — a little less for freezers that don't keep that cold That's long enough to keep the red ones for Valentine's Day and the green ones for St Patrick's Day!

But be sure to follow a few guidelines for the best results

• Package the cookies tightly in foil, moisture-proof plastic wrap, freezer wrap or water-tight freezer containers.

• Never mix different types of cookies when storing them, because they will absorb each others' aromas Baking soda, nuts and chocolate especially have a tendency to absorb aromas. Strongly scented cookies, like gingersnaps, will share that odor with anything else it is stored with for a period of time. Cookies will also tend to "share" moisture characteristics—crispy cookies will become soft and soft cookies will become hard when stored together

• When you thaw the cookies to eat them, place them in an oven for five minutes at 300 degrees, or put them in the microwave for a few seconds That will help them seem like fresh from the oven.

For anyone who never got around to baking all that cookie dough you planned to bake, it will also safely store in the freezer for up to three months Leftover nuts will keep in the freezer for six to eight months if they're salted, while unsalted nuts freeze well for nine to 12 months Again, they should be packaged tightly in foil, moisture-proof plastic wrap, freezer wrap or water-tight freezer containers

Other baked goods also can be frozen to enjoy later Both bread and cake will keep up to three months in the freezer—but be sure to frost the cake after it's thawed out and ready to serve Unbaked fruit pies can be frozen for up to eight months, baked pies can be stored three to four months Chiffon pies, prepared with a gelatin base, can be put in the freezer unwrapped until the top is frozen, to prevent it from sticking to the wrapping Wrap it immediately and freeze for up to two weeks Meringue toppings toughen when frozen and should be added just before serving

Longer storage times for any of these foods doesn't pose a food safety risk, but flavors and textures will begin to deteriorate after the recommended time.

Create An Oasis For Birds

With a little planning and open space, gardeners can create an oasis for many types of birds. Depending on the number, kind, and arrangement of trees and other plants on your property, a handful of species of birds will find a home. Pigeons, house sparrows, starlings, and house finches are found in real urban areas.

As the amount of open space and natural vegetation increase so does the diversity of birds. Cardinals, mourning doves, blue jays, and robins are common in communities that have some open space and trees. Chickadees, nuthatches and some woodpeckers prefer small patches of woods. Migrating warblers may also use these areas for feeding and resting on their journey south in the fall or on the return in the spring.

Each particular species of birds require a slightly different habitat, food, water, cover and space for survival. In your backyard, the kinds of birds you attract depends on the kinds of trees and shrubs you plant or retain.

Select plants that provide a year-round food source. Many birds eat soft mast (fruit). Select berry-producers like serviceberry, mountain ash, and hawthorn. When trees are fruiting, be on the lookout for larger flocks of cedar waxwings or robins attracted to your trees from oak trees. Hard mast fruit includes acorns, hickories, beechnuts, and walnuts. Seeds from shade trees provide food for birds like blue jays.

In the winter, conifers like hemlocks and pines provide needed shelter for birds and nesting sites in the spring. Birds are attracted to clusters of vegetation rather than scattered individual trees or shrubs. Birds develop habitat up vertically in addition to horizontally. Plant trees, shrubs and herbaceous plants of different heights and sizes for a greater number of bird species. Maximize the number of layers of vegetation that are present in your yard. This means you want to have multiple layers from small shrubs to larger canopy trees planted in close proximity to one another.

Create corridors of vegetation using a variety of trees and shrubs. This helps birds move from one are to another. Connect islands of vegetation with corridors of trees. If wild areas and woodlots are present, use corridors to connect these areas together.

Retain or plant trees and shrubs along streams and waterways. Although many birds obtain water from the foods they eat or from dew or rain, open water always attracts birds. Enhance a stream or waterway by planting trees and shrubs along the stream edge. These trees provide food and cover in close proximity to the water.

Avoid larger areas planted with only one or two types of trees and shrubs. Different birds have different habitat requirements. The best way to attract a variety of birds is to landscape with more than two types of trees and shrubs.

Large areas of lawn is very low quality habitat for few species of birds including starlings, robins, and Canada geese. Consider converting part of the area to a wildflower garden for hummingbirds or convert some of it to islands of trees and shrubs.

Large shade trees like oaks and elms provide nest sites for many birds including robins, blue jays, and orioles. To provide habitat for cavity nesters, build and place nest boxes. Nest boxes often attract house sparrows and starlings in urban areas. Also, shrubs like forsythia or raspberry provide nest sites for birds like cardinals. Conifers are used as nest sites by chipping sparrows and mourning doves.

QUESTION — G. Sweitzer, Airville, wanted to know what temperature and for what length of time should field corn be roasted in an oven prior to grinding into roasted corn meal. Can the unground roasted corn be kept for a year or more in an air-tight container?

QUESTION — Janet Huber, Williamstown, wants a recipe for chocolate banana cookies.

QUESTION — A long time reader from Ticonderoga, N.Y., would like recipes that use northern-hardy kiwi, which is small and grapesized with a smooth skin. It grows on clusters of vines.

QUESTION — Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, would like a recipe for Cream of Crab soup that tastes like the kind they serve at Rutter's Family Restaurant.

QUESTION — Terry Roup, Danville, wants a recipe for a cracked sugar cookie, a large flat cookie with cracks on top.

QUESTION — Bernie Seeko, Hackettstown, N.J., would like to know how to keep raisins, nuts, or berries from settling in the bottom of cakes when baking. She's tried coating them with flour just before baking with no luck.

QUESTION — Helen Hertzler, Morgantown, wants a recipe for pizza crust in which the dry ingredients can be mixed and stored until ready to use and then warm water added, which is similar to store-bought packs of pizza crust mix.

QUESTION — A Shippensburg reader would like a recipe for corn crackles.

QUESTION — Betty Lou Gambler, Concord, writes that her mother purchased a pickle compound at the former People's Drug Store during the 1940s and 1950s. There were four packages in one recipe and contained rock salt, saccharine, clove oil, and an acid of some kind that was mixed into 1 gallon of cold vinegar and poured over pickles. The pickles were ready to eat within several days and tasted delicious. She has tried many stores and has not been able to locate the pickling compound. Can any one help her?

QUESTION — J. Gramiccioni, Stockton, N.J., wants to know where to purchase real Italian vinegar without preservatives. Her father brought some from Italy, but she can't find it over here. Does anyone know how it can be made or purchased?

QUESTION — A reader from Orange County, N.Y. would like a recipe for Half Sour Pickles, she believes the cucumbers are soaked in brine overnight and can be eaten the following day.

QUESTION — A reader from Finger Lakes, N.Y., would like a recipe to can together sliced onions and green bell peppers (not pickled).

QUESTION — Rose Diehl, Bloomsburg, wants a recipe for pork scrapple.

ANSWER — Here's a recipe for Cry Baby Cookies from Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V. Sounds interesting, but no reason was included with the recipe to explain why the name was given to this cookie.

Jean's Cry Baby Cookies

1 egg
3 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup cold water
Raisins, currents, walnuts, as desired

Mix together ingredients and drop by tablespoonful on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for about 10-15 minutes.

ANSWER — Ruth Sholl, Mt. Aetna, wrote that her husband's grandmother made pot pie from a raised dough that was cut in squares. Ruth has tried many pot pie recipes, but is unable to find one that tastes like the grandmother's and asked if anyone could help her? Cookie Rhodes sent a recipe, which had been passed down from her mother, and one that she has been using for 40 years.

Pot Pie

2 cups flour
2 tablespoons shortening
½ teaspoon baking powder

Mix with enough water to make a soft dough to roll out. Cut into squares and drop into boiling water.

Pot Pie Squares

Combine:
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Cut in 2 tablespoons lard, as for pastry. Beat one egg and add ⅓ cup water. Combine with flour mixture. Roll out very thin on floured board. Cut into 2-inch squares and add to simmering meat and broth and a couple of diced potatoes. Cook until potatoes are soft.

ANSWER — Fern Gerth, Reading, wanted a recipe for lemon curd. Thanks to Penny O'Donnell, Elkton, Md., for sending a recipe.

Lemon Curd

Rind of 3 lemons
Juice of 2 large lemons
1 stick butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well-beaten

Grate the rind carefully, taking only the yellow zest and not the white pith. Squeeze juice from two lemons. Put rind, juice, butter, and sugar on top of double boiler. Cook, stirring occasionally, until butter and sugar are melted. Add beaten eggs, keep cooking until mixture coats back of wooden spoon. Pour into jars, cover, and refrigerate.

Thanks to Lynda Bell, Lincoln University, for sending another recipe.

Lemon Curd

2 cups sugar
1 cup butter
¼ cup grated lemon rind
⅔ cups fresh lemon juice
4 eggs, slightly beaten

Combine sugar, butter, lemon rind, and lemon juice in top of a double boiler.

Bring water to a boil. Reduce heat to low. Cook until butter melts.

Stir about ¼ of the hot mixture into eggs. Add the remaining hot mixture, stirring constantly. Cook stirring constantly over medium heat until the mixture thickens and coats a spoon (about 15 minutes).

Remove from heat and cool. Can keep in refrigerator about two weeks.

ANSWER — Here is a holiday favorite recipe from Lancaster County Alternate Dairy Princess Jamie Horning, Stevens. She writes that this is a great and easy Christmas morning breakfast that tastes wonderful. This may be too late to make for your Christmas breakfast, but it will taste just as great any other morning.

Baked Cheese Omelet

5 eggs
2 tablespoons cream
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Seasoned salt (optional)
2 slices bread
1 rounded tablespoon butter
Cheese

Put first five ingredients in blender. Crumble bread into flat shallow baking dish. Butter crust and dish. Pour egg mixture over buttered crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes or until firm. Top with cheese slices or grated cheese. Return to oven until cheese is melted.

ANSWER — Ruth Ann Byler, Dover, Del., sent in this recipe requested by Rose Diehl.

Turkey Bologna

50 pounds cut up turkey meat
2½ pounds quick oats
12½-ounces salt
1 teaspoon saltpetre
1 pound Tender Quick

Sprinkle ingredients over meat and mix thoroughly. Grind, and let stand 3-4 days in refrigerator. Grind again (twice is best). Sprinkle the following on top of meat mixture:

1-ounce coriander
1-ounce black pepper
2 teaspoons ground mace
½ teaspoon heaping powdered garlic

Sprinkle over ground meat. Mix 2 tablespoons Liquid Smoke, ½ pound nonfat dry milk with one gallon water. Pour over spice and meat and mix thoroughly. Liquid Smoke may be omitted but then smoke four hours at 125-150 degrees over an open fire.

Meat may be frozen or canned. If canned, fill cans only three-fourth full and follow directions for pressure canning.

New Year's Fare

PORK AND SAUERKRAUT

2-3 pound pork loin
3 quarts sauerkraut
Caraway seed (optional)

Combine ingredients and cook in slow cooker for six hours or until meat is done. Or, bake in oven at 325 degrees for four hours or until pork tests done.

PEANUT BUTTER ICE CREAM PIE

Crust:
¼ cup honey
½ cup peanut butter
2 cups rice crispy cereal

Combine ingredients and press into pie pan for a crust. Fill with as much ice cream as desired. Top with whipped cream.

Even though it's usually cold in January, my family loves this pie because it tastes so good and uses dairy products.

SWEDISH RICE PUDDING

Start the New Year with a sweet finish to your meal. Prepare this lucky rice pudding with just one whole almond hidden within—tradition says that the one who gets the almond will marry within a year.

6 cups cooked rice
6 cups milk
1 cup sugar
6 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 whole blanched almond

Combine rice, milk, sugar, and butter. Cook over medium heat until thickened, about 30 minutes, stirring often. Add almond and vanilla. Pour into serving dish. Serve hot or cold. Serves 12.

GARLICKY GREENS

Greens such as kale, chard or cabbage are symbolic of paper money and a sign of wealth and prosperity. Cash in on tradtion by adding this colorful side dish to your festive New Year's meal.

2 pounds kale, chard or mustard greens, trimmed, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 tablespoon salt
4 slices bacon, diced
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 cloves garlic, crushed
¾-cup chicken broth
8 dried tomato halves, packed in oil, drained
1 teaspoon dried rosemary, crushed
Dash red pepper flakes
Salt and pepper, to taste
⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Fill a 4-quart saucepan three-quarters full with water, bring to a boil. Add 1 tablespoon salt and diced bacon; boil 5 minutes. Add greens; cook until almost tender but still bright green, about 6-8 minutes (time will depend on type of greens used). Drain well. Heat olive oil in large skillet and saute garlic, stirring constantly, until tender but not browned; stir in reserved greens and bacon, chicken broth, tomatoes, rosemary, red pepper flakes, and salt and pepper. Cook and stir gently until heated through. Top each with dusting of Parmesan cheese. Serves 6.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — A South Jersey wanted a recipe for pumpkin cheesecake with a gingersnap crust, which had been printed in "Good Housekeeping." Thanks to Tessie Kizis, Newsoms, Va., who sent a recipe that she said is from "The Victory Garden Cookbook," published in 1982.

Pumpkin Cheese Pie

1½ cups pulverized ginger snaps
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup melted butter
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
9-ounces softened cream cheese
1½ cups pureed cooked pumpkin
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup sour cream

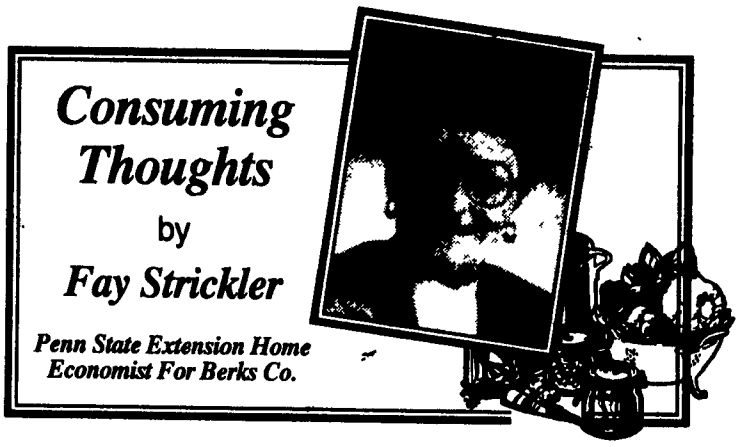
Stir together ginger snap crumbs, ¼ cup of the sugar, and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Mix in melted butter, and pat mixture into a deep 9-inch pie dish. In a large bowl, beat together eggs, ¾ cup sugar, until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and cream cheese; beat until smooth. Stir in pumpkin, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, nutmeg, and cloves. Pour into pie shell and bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 40 minutes. Remove; let stand 5 minutes. Combine the sour cream, 2 tablespoons sugar, and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Spread on top of pie, and bake at 450 degrees for 5 minutes. Chill pie before serving.

ANSWER — Denise Fletcher, Trumansburg, N.Y., wanted a recipe for a sweet, spicy mustard. Thanks to Lynda Bell, Lincoln University, for sending a recipe that she has been using for at least 20 years. She often makes it for gifts.

Sweet And Hot Mustard

5 tablespoons powdered mustard
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash red pepper (optional)
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup apple cider vinegar
1 tablespoon butter

Combine mustard, sugar, flour, salt, and red pepper in top of double boiler. Add eggs and vinegar. Mix well. Place over boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add butter, stir until melted.



If you are like many people in Berks County, you will serve pork and sauerkraut at your New Year's dinner. Many people believe that by having pork and sauerkraut on new Year's Day they will have good luck in the coming year.

When making a decision on which pork cut to pick up at the meat counter, remember to think about cost per serving rather than cost per pound.

For one serving you need to purchase 1/4 to 1/3 pound of boneless meat (such as tenderloin); 1/3 to 1/2 pound of meat with a little bone (such as chops); and 3/4 to 1 pound of meat with a lot of bone(such as spareribs).

Color is important, too. Pork should be pink to delicate rose. It should be fine textured with a moderate amount of marbling throughout.

As soon as you get home, put your pork purchases in the coldest part of your refrigerator. If you plan to keep fresh pork longer than two days, wrap it in freezer paper and freeze it. This will retain its quality.

Pork has been an important part of the American diet since DeSoto first brought pigs to this continent in the 16th century.

In fact, the pork you now get in the supermarket is drastically different than what consumers brought 40 year ago.

Primarily, it is much leaner In the first quarter century, 60 percent of the fat has been removed from market hogs through the use of better genetics and feeding programs.

And while it was once widely thought that pork was hard to digest and hard to cook, nothing could be further from the truth.

One of the secrets to successful cookery is to use a low temperature. this will reduce the amount of shrinkage, leaving the meat more tender, juicy and flavorful, and the meat will cook more evenly.

The lean and tender pork available today requires a shorter cooking time. Well done pork roasts should be cooked to an internal temperature of 170 degrees for optimum results. Recommended oven temperature for cooking pork roasts is 325 degrees.

The lower recommended internal temperature for cooking pork also means a savings on your energy bill. How do you make sure it's 170 degrees? The only way is to use a meat thermometer.

Pork roasts vary in shape, size, amount of bone, leanness and thickness. A meat thermometer is the most accurate guide to the degree of doneness of roasts. The thermometer should be inserted in the roast with the bulb inserted in the center of the thickest part of the roast, not touching the bone. As the roast cooks, the thermometer will measure the internal temperature of the meat.

When you cook your sauerkraut add a peeled onion which has been quartered and your sauerkraut will not talk back to you after the meal. Remove the onion before you serve the sauerkraut.

Best wishes for a happy New Year!

Fish And Wildlife Will Enjoy Christmas Trees After The Holidays

COLUMBUS, Ohio — When the holiday season is over, the Christmas trees don't have to end up in the trash, said Joe Heimlich, Ohio State University Extension waste management specialist. Old trees can be ground into mulch or used as fish shelters in ponds.

Holiday trees and other greenery add tons to the solid waste stream in the days and weeks after Christmas.

"Waste management districts, in order to extend the life of landfills, are doing what they can to limit the amount of yard waste, including Christmas trees and other greenery, that goes into landfills," Heimlich said. "Yard waste can still go into landfills, but often local policy keeps it out."

The most common use for trees after the holidays is in a chipping program. Many communities have a site where trees are delivered on certain days then ground into chips that are used as a mulch material. Communities can use mulch on park trails, around landscape plantings or as a bulking agent in sludge composting, he said.

A chipping program can be used as a fund-raising effort, with an organization chipping the trees, selling the mulch and keeping the proceeds.

In some programs, instead of donating the chips to a municipality or fund-raising organization, individuals can take the chips home for their own use. Depending on the situation the trees may be chipped for free or a small fee charged.

"People can call their solid waste district or community office, or an urban forester in the parks and recreation department if they have one, to see if a chipping program is available in their area," Heimlich said.

If a chipping program is not available, the trees could be used as artificial fish attractors in ponds or reservoirs. Many ponds and reservoirs contain little or no natural underwater structures for fish because the waterways were originally cleared for boating, natural structures have decayed with age, and fluctuating water levels prevent growth of underwater vegetation. Without these structures, fish often are dispersed and hard to catch.

Sinking cut Christmas trees into ponds and reservoirs causes fish to concentrate in these areas and improve fishing. Some fish hide in the branches to escape predators, others feed on snails and aquatic insects found on the structures, and most fish seek the shaded areas during hot and sunny days.

In ponds, the trees commonly are wired to cement blocks and sunk in 6 feet to 10 feet of water. In reservoirs, the trees should be placed in 12 feet to 21 feet of water. In both cases, the trees should be placed away from swimming areas, and the locations should be marked so swimmers and boaters can avoid them. Get permission from the pond owner before placing trees in a pond, Heimlich said, and contact the state Division of Wildlife for permission and direction before placing structures in reservoirs.

A simple alternative way to dispose of cut holiday trees is to use them as wildlife cover in fields, forests and other natural settings. Birds, rabbits and other small animals could use them as shelter during winter months, and the trees would eventually decay as any other tree that fell in the area, Heimlich said. People also should get permission before placing trees in natural areas.

Before placing trees in ponds or natural areas, people need to remove all artificial decorations, hooks and tinsel.

"Tinsel is mostly all plastic, which does not digest," Heimlich said. "If an animal eats too much of it, it could block the intestines."

Hooks and glass could also harm or even kill wildlife. However, "natural" decorations, such as gingerbread men and popcorn or cranberries strung with natural string or thread instead of fish line or nylon thread, can be left on trees to provide food for birds and other animals.

Why do beavers have orange teeth?

Orange-teethed beavers don't need to make a long-overdue appointment with their dentist. That colored outer layer helps keep their teeth in business.

Dam-building beavers really put their teeth to the test. They gnaw down small trees to build their homes and chew bark for food. They do all of the chopping with their large, front cutting teeth, called incisors. The incisors never wear down from all the sawing because they grow non-stop. Plus, the super-hard, orange-colored topping, called enamel, strengthens the front surface of the teeth.

The backside of the incisors, though, don't have any special coating, so the backsides wear away faster than the front. That might seem like it would be a problem, but in reality it helps make the beaver's job a little easier. As the backs of the incisors wear down, the teeth form a curved, chisel like shape — which is perfect for biting out chunks of wood. Beavers can even sharpen the edges of their front teeth "saws" by scraping their bottom teeth against the upper ones.

Beavers also have a total of eight back teeth that crush and grind twigs and wood chips into pulp. These grinders are set farther back in the beaver's mouth, leaving a big space in between them and the front teeth. Even that space has a purpose for the busy beavers — it makes it easier for them to carry the wood in their mouths!

Rita Rhoads, right, tells Roberta Dissinger, New Holland, that the two most common cancers in women 50 years and over can easily be detected during routine physical examinations. "With early detection, there is no need for women to be dying of these cancers," Rhoads said. To assure that uninsured and underinsured women receive adequate medical care, free gynecological testing and examinations are available through the Healthy Women 50+ Program.

Free Medical Exams For Women 50+

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Studies have shown that farm women are often lacking in health care.

Part of the reason is that the farm wife is so busy taking care of everyone else that she doesn't have time to care for herself.

She is also probably uninsured or underinsured.

During the childbearing years, the farm wife may receive adequate medical care whenever she is pregnant but when she stops having children, she usually stops going for physical checkups.

This is especially alarming to health care professionals because women 50 years and older are at risk for breast and cervical cancer.

Early detection, in most cases, means more successful treatment.

Good news for women is that government funding is available to receive pelvic and breast exams, pap smears, and mammograms through the HealthyWoman 50+ program.

If problems are detected, additional funding is available for follow-up care, such as ultrasound and a gynecologist's consultation.

Birth Care and Family Health Services, a midwifery birth and women's health care center in Quarryville, is one of the places where these free services are available. The Center will also conduct a full physical examination and offer counseling about calcium and hormone replacement therapy.

"The two most common cancers in women are breast and cervical. Both are picked up in routine examinations," said Rita Rhoads, nurse and midwife at the center.

"There is no reason for women dying from these cancers if they are getting these exams annually," Rhoads said. "It's rare to find full-blown cervical cancer in a woman who has been having a physical every year."

Funding is provided in part by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention under a contract administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

"If you pay taxes, you are paying for this. Women should take advantage of it," said Rhoads.

If the woman is uninsured, the program pays the complete cost. For the underinsured, the program pays whatever costs the insurance company does not cover. Either way, the services are free.

Medicare pays for these services in women older than 65 years of age. If a woman does not use Medicare because of religious beliefs, she is eligible for the services through the 50+ program.

"After Christmas is a good time of the year for farm women to take care of themselves. There is no gardening and they generally aren't as busy," Rhoads said.

She founded the center, which is considered a forerunner in cost containment, to provide affordable services for women and children.

If you would like to schedule an appointment or have additional questions about the HealthyWoman 50+ program, contact Birth Care, 1180 Dry Wells Rd., Quarryville. Phone (717) 786-4010. Or call your local health care provider or the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER.

Women's Affordable Health Care Celebrates Two Decades

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — Borrowing from the oft-repeated statement: "It takes a community to raise a child," Kitty Ernst said, "It takes a community to raise a birth center—and the people in Quarryville have done that."

Ernst, one of the founders of the National Association of Childbearing Centers (NACC), spoke at Birth Care's 20th Anniversary Celebration last week at Willow Valley Resort and Conference Center.

State legislators, supporters, and clients celebrated with Rita Rhoads, the founding visionary. She was the first person to open a birth center in Pennsylvania and one of the first 10 in the nation.

Rhoads spoke of her passion to provide affordable health care for women and the circumstances that led up to the center's establishment in 1978.

Cut faster, condition better

For greater maneuverability and higher efficiency, nothing beats the Model 1431 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from New Holland. It features a 13' cutting width, and operates at high ground speeds in wet, heavy grass without plugging. Fire anthills and gopher mounds won't stop the new Model 1431 either.

Outstanding features include:

- A center pivot-tongue design
- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

whelmed with fear. I'd cry out to God and plead for him to spare Dale's life—that's how I fell asleep. When I awoke in the morning, I'd have strength to face a new day."

But the fight was only beginning. Dale had suffered a stroke while in the coma, which left him with a weakened left side and peripheral vision. He developed bleeding stomach ulcers from the medication, pneumonia, and his heart was under stress.

One night Janie was asleep when a nurse shook her shoulder to awaken her.

Janie sat up with a start. Fear surfacing. But the nurse assured her that it was good news. "He's awake," the nurse reported.

Estatic Janie rushed to her husband's side. When Dale smiled at her, "It was a taste of heaven." Janie said. "It was the highlight after all the low points."

It was a time of rejoicing for Janie, who was thrilled to see signs of life, such as a finger twitch and eyes fluttering, for the first time in many days.

Janie was warned that people coming out of drug-induced comas often react violently and out of character.

But Dale's reaction was so calm that doctors and nurses remarked how unusual it was under the circumstances.

Hallucinations during this time are common. And Dale was not exempt. He remembers seeing tractors and equipment running across the hospital ceiling.

"But I remember learning from my ambulance days that hallucinations are a common reaction in drug-induced patients. Somehow I remembered them telling me that I had been given a lot of drugs," said Dale, who remained unperturbed by the strange sounds and sights he was experiencing.

But the fight was only beginning. Dale had suffered a stroke while in the coma, which left him with a weakened left side and peripheral vision. He developed bleeding stomach ulcers from the medication, pneumonia, and his heart was under stress.

On the home front, grandparents were caring for the children. Janie had made the decision not to have the children come into the hospital while their father was in a coma.

In retrospect, they know it was the best decision. When he was recuperating and had only a feeding tube inserted, the children came in and found it tramatic enough to deal with.

The harvesting season was in full swing. Dale's brother, with whom he farms in partnership, and his father continued the milking and tried to make up for Dale's absence.

The community pitched in. "It was a wonderful sight," Janie recalls of the day the neighbors showed up to harvest the crops.

" At one end of the field Amish were using horses to pick the corn, and at the other end, neighbors were using modern machinery for harvesting."

The community also held a benefit auction to help pay expenses that the Martins' insurance policy did not cover.

Rehabilitation was hard work and hard for Janie to watch as Dale struggled to pick up a spoon. He needed to relearn to sit up by himself and many other ordinary activities.

Janie said, "He's too humble to tell you, but Dale is very motivated. He set goals. Even if he didn't reach them by the date he had set, he didn't give up until he achieved it."

The Martins learned to appreciate the little things, to celebrate each accomplishment.

When Dale came home in a wheelchair in time for Christmas last year, he couldn't dress himself or walk. Rehabilitation therapists came to the home three days a week. Progress often seemed slow.

Dale forced himself to dry dishes while he sat in the wheelchair. He peeled potatoes and picked up guitar playing in order to hone motor skills.

The family had adjustments. As is the case with most brain-injured patients, noise bothered Dale. At the same time, he didn't want to make the children be quiet. Friends and family members often picked up the children so that the house could be quieter.

Jan. 2, 1998, was the first radiation treatment Dale received. He had five treatments a week for six weeks at the Lancaster Health Campus.

The side effects of the radiation was not as bad as Dale had been warned. Nevertheless, his appearance was greatly altered. He lost his hair from ear to ear. Cortisone shots caused massive swelling. It took about eight months after the treatments for the fluid swelling to go down.

Today, Dale looks the picture of health. His weight has returned to his pre-sickness weight. The swelling on the brain has completely resided. The tumor is dormant.

"I was told that I have six months to 40 years to live," Dale said of his prognosis. "I have passed the six-month mark, so I figure I have another 39½ years."

Although the future is uncertain, Dale said, "We don't dwell on it. I'm no different than anyone else. No one else has a guarantee of tomorrow either."

He is back to farming full-time.

"Although I'd say my strength is about where it was before, my endurance level is down. I need to rest more often."

One of the most difficult things is making decisions in the farming operation. Farming in partnership with his brother, the two had always rented additional ground to add to the 80-acre dairy farm that has been in the family for three generations.

"Is it fair to my brother to say let's keep renting additional ground if I'm too weak to carry my load? This illness has put more responsibility on my brother. Is it fair to keep expecting him to carry more than an equal share?" Dale grapples with these questions, trying to determine the best course.

Before the brain tumor, Dale prided himself in his sense of direction. Put him anywhere and he could find his way home.

After his hospitalization, his sense of direction has gone awry. At first, he couldn't figure which direction to take when he left the farm, but his sense of direction is slowly improving, and Dale hopes it will continue to do so.

One of the most exciting events for him recently is being fitted with special glasses that restore the eyesight he lost from the stroke. The glasses are a new scientific development, and Dale is the first in the county to be fitted with them. The glasses have a prism built into the lenses with a vertical line through the center.

The glasses take the light, the images that Dale can't see, and bends them into his vision so that he can see.

"It's wonderful," Dale said. "It took lots of fittings because if the prism was off one millimeter either way, they wouldn't work."

The brush with death has changed the family. "We don't worry about material things like we used to," Dale said. "We appreciate family and friends more."

Janie grinned and added, "Now if we get angry, we don't hold a grudge for long. Put in perspective, what's the big deal?"

Janie said that she is more prone to worrying than her husband. But his faith inspires her.

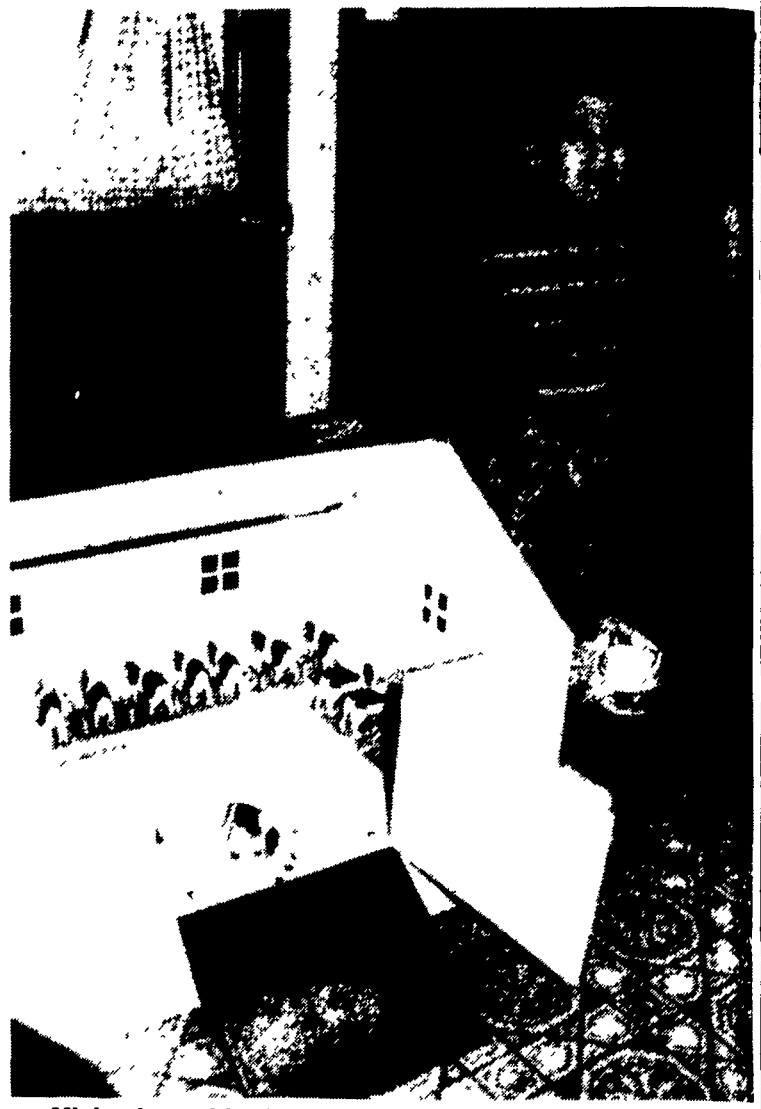
Dale explains, "I figure I can't change one minute of my life by worrying, so it's no use to worry. Although I'd like to stay with my family, I figure it's better to go to heaven then stay on earth anyway."

After believing that Christmas 1997 would be the last Christmas their family would celebrate together, Janie is overjoyed to see her husband in such vibrant health.

The family laughs easily. "Dale has always had a sense of humor and this helps us cope," Janie said.

In addition to dairy farming, the Martins operate a Bed and Breakfast on their farm. They had taken a break during Dale's recuperation period, but are now happy that many of their regular guests are returning.

For more information about their Bed and Breakfast, call (717) 768-3394.



Michael got his Christmas wish—his daddy is better. Here Michael shows off the barn his dad made with the help a friend. Bunk feeders, a silo, cows, calves, and real beans enable Michael's play to be as authentic as the dairy farm they live on.

"It was prayer that got me through. Sometimes I'd fall into bed so overwhelmed with fear. I'd cry out to God and plead for him to spare Dale's life—that's how I fell asleep. When I awoke in the morning, I'd have strength to face a new day."

Contest To Be Held at State Farm Show

Enter Pennsylvania's Greatest Shoofly Pie Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Attention, bakers!

For the first time ever Pennsylvania's Greatest Shoofly Pie Contest will be held at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Here's a chance to win $500 for the best pie, $100 for second place, or $50 for third place.

Pre-registration is not required. According to Bev Gruber, contestants may walk-in with their pie entry between noon and 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 10. Judging begins at 3 p.m. The audience may watch while the judging is conducted.

The contest is sponsored by Golden Barrel Baking Products.

Ingredients in the pie must contain either Golden Barrel molasses or table syrup. Pie must be presented for judging in 9-inch pie plate and must be covered to retain freshness and to prevent contamination until judged.

A clearly printed or typed recipe, which includes both ingredients and method of preparation, must accompany the entry.

Judging will be based on overall appearance, crust (color, flavor, texture, and doneness), aroma, filling (consistency, moistness, doneness, flavor) and creativity. No commercial mixes are allowed.

The contest is open to any youth or adult residing in Pennsylvania. Each individual is permitted one entry, which only that individual prepared.

Women's Affordable Health Care

After Rhoads' educational completion of nurse practitioner and nurse-midewifery studies in Kentucky, she returned to the county to provide safe home birthing services. But there were no midwifery practices to join and no nurse midwives in the county. Medical doctors were skeptical of sharing their practices with someone who wanted to do home births.

"I never intended to become independent, but it became necessary in order to provide women what they desired," Rhoads said of home birthing that she describes as safe, satisfying, and cost effective with no technology unless necessary.

Nonetheless she needed a doctor as a backup with patients who had complications. Dr. Robert Kemp of Quarryville agreed to back up the new concept.

It was not easy for Rhoads who had a difficult time obtaining financial help to build a center on an idea that was not "mainline."

Much to Rhoads consternation, her first patient had complications and she had to send her to the hospital. In retrospect, Rhoads sees that as a blessing in disguise. It showed local doctors that she was willing to consult and have a safe practice.

In 1983, the center became a nonprofit entity with board members selected from parents who had used the services of the birthing center.

The center also provides children's healthcare and participates in the Healthy Women 50+ program, which offers free clinical breast exams, mammograms, and Pap tests to detect early signs of breast and cervical cancer.

Clients and community members rally in support of the center and help annually with fundraisers. Funds raised help pay for patients in need such as a pregnant woman whose husband abandoned her because she would not abort the baby, a young mother diagnosed with incurable cancer, and a wife whose husband is unable to work because of illness.

Last year, the center established a mobile office, which goes to different communities for those who have transportation difficulties.

The center now has two midwives, four nurses, a full-time administrator, receptionist, and maintenance worker.

ANSWER — Abe Gingerich, Free Union, Vir., wanted the words to the poem "When Men Are Sick." Thanks to Gladys S. Martin, Ephrata, and others for sending the humorous poem that pokes fun at men because of their tendency "to be really sick" when they aren't feeling well and for the "When Ma Is Sick," version. No author's name was given.

When Pa Is Sick

When Pa is sick, he's scared to death,
An' Ma an' us just holds our breath.
He crawls in bed and puffs and grunts,
An' does all kinds of crazy stunts.
He wants Doc Brown, an' mighty quick,
For when Pa's ill, he's awful sick
He gasps an' groans, an' sort of sighs;
He talks so queer, and rolls his eyes.
Ma jumps an' runs, an' all of us,
And all the house is in a fuss
An' peace an' joy is mighty skeerce—

When Ma Is Sick

When Ma is sick, she pegs away;
She's quiet, though, not much to say.
She goes right on a-doin' things,
An' sometimes laughs and even sings.
She says she don't feel extra well;
But the, it's just a kind of spell.
She'll be all right tomorrow, sure
A good old sleep will be the cure
An' Pa, he sniffs, and makes no kick,
For women folks is always sick!
An' Ma, she smiles, let's on she's glad;
When Ma is sick, it ain't so bad!

ANSWER — Matthew Stevens wanted the address of a man who collects postcards of covered bridges. The incorrect address was given for Linda Christman's husband who collects them. The address is 7623 Valley View Lane, Greencastle, PA 17225.

ANSWER — Terry Shane, Boyertown, wanted to know how to get the smell of mothballs out of an old poplar blanket chest. Joyce Grim, Revere, recommends putty Kitty Litter in trays and stirring once in a while and change when needed. She did this during the summer and it worked fine.

S. Fisher writes that she sells a proven product that works for this and also rids musty smells in basements, which another reader had requested. For more information on the product available on a free-trial basis, write to S. Fisher, 1010 Lime Valley Rd., Lancaster, PA 17602.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

When you read this, Christmas will have come and gone. However, I must write this article 10 days before the big day. Therefore, I can only guess how things will be the day afterwards.

We have again invited all of the members of my husband's family and of my family for a drop-in party. Only half can realistically be expected to attend. But, even 50 people will make a full house especially since several families will be staying with us for several days.

At least we are hoping for good weather as that will help the attendance. On some big occasions we have had blizzards and only those living nearby could attempt the journey. Sometimes only tractors and horses can get through big drifts.

This year I again made 20 kinds of cookies and packed boxes for the neighbors. Often the problem is finding nice boxes to use and so I must put them on plates. Usually we add one or two new kinds each year, but the sand tarts, snickerdoodles, and spice cookies are old standbys.

Our youngest grandson will be coming from Texas and will celebrate his first birthday at our home. We'll have to have a cake and candles as that is traditional. In the past few weeks I helped to celebrate two other grandson's birthdays. Their mother made their cakes and they were different. One was a rainbow-shaped cake of many colors while the other was an apple with a big green worm crawling out of it.

At this point in time, I still have the tree to trim and the house to decorate. First thing I know, it will be time to take them all down again.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 18

Lancaster Farm Women Society 18 held its meeting Dec. 12 with Roberta Shepherdson as hostess. Fifteen ladies answered roll call by answering with an old-time family remedy for illness. Surprisingly only one mentioned castor oil.

The program was most informative as a visiting nurse listed the many ways her days are filled overseeing health care in homes. Many nurses are skilled in particular areas from infants to Hospice care. Many can be cared for in the familiar surroundings of home and loved ones by using the services of a home health group. She cautioned of the necessity for checking if the group is accreditated and are recognized by Medicare, etc.

ANSWER — Toni LeVan, Galeton, wanted to know how to make soap. Lydia Swarey writes that she makes laundry soap regularly and has other recipes that she will share if you write to her at R.D. 2, Box 522, Mifflintown, PA 17059-9649. If you have access to an old-fashioned or Amish cookbook, check it for directions.

ANSWER — For Madeline VanLeuren, Mantua, N.J., and others who wanted to know where to send used greeting cards to someone who would like them for crafts, here's a great need. The St. Jude's Ranch for Children reuses greeting cards to raise money for the abused children who live there. Send only the front of cards to St. Jude's Ranch for Children, 100 St. Jude St., Boulder City. Nev. 89005.

ANSWER — In response to C. Hoffman who wanted to know how to make a wooden hay fork out of one piece of wood, 94-year-old Whity Huhn, Coopersburg, writes the following: Only hard wood such as ash, poplar, or oak should be used, and it must be fresh-cut green wood, so that it will bend easier.

After cutting it to size, and splitting one end for the tines or fingers of the fork, it can be bent to shape using boiling water poured over the area to be bent (the tines or fingers of the fork).

the tricky part is that after slowly bending the green wood, it must be placed into a mold so as to hold the bend permanently. The mold may be any series of pieces of wood nailed in place so as to hold the green wood when forced into it. Ideally one should also be able to tighten the bend, day by day as the green wood dries, until one gets the desired shape of the hay fork.

A book called "Fine Wood Working on Bending Wood," is available at Woodworking Warehouse (a chain store). The book shows various wood bending methods, though not specifically using a hay fork as an example.

Origins Of Christmas Traditions

TURKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — Traditions are all around us Christmas time of year. Some are local, regional, national or even global while others are enjoyed only as part of a family's special holiday. Here are some origins of some familiar Christmas traditions.

The term Christmas originated from Cristes Maesse (the Mass of Christ) first so called in the year 1038. Previous to being called Christmas the celebration was also known as the Feast of the Nativity.

The Feast of the Nativity was first held on January 6, and was apparently changed to December 25 in the fourth century A.D. in Rome.

The star which many of us put at the top of our tree comes from the Bible and the accounts of the birth of Christ. Matthew records, "Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east and are come to worship him."

The use of the nativity scene seems to come from Spain. Even today, most Spanish families have a Nativity Scene. After Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve all of the family gathers for a special dinner and then gathers around the Nativity Scene and sings carols.

While both the English and the Romans used wreaths and greenery in their celebrations, the Christmas tree is considered to be of German origin. The fir tree represents life—especially in winter, when other trees are barren, but the fir is evergreen. Pagan winter festivals used the evergreen tree before the celebrations were converted into Christmas. The present-day Christmas tree is a carry-over from the pagan rite where it represented life. In early times it was not decorated, but by the beginning of the 17th century glittering ornaments were added, along with fruits made of gold paper and festoons of silver. Legend is that Martin Luther, after wandering one Christmas Eve under a starry winter sky, set up a tree for his children and decorated it with candles as an image of the heaven.

Holly and Christmas have long been synonymous. The ancient Druids, an order of priests who lived two thousands years ago in Britain and Gaul, believed that if they decorated their dwellings with holly they would be protected from the rigors of winter. The early Greeks and Romans sent holly boughs to their friends as a token of their friendship. Today it is a symbol of good wishes and good cheer.

The Romans, who gave holly boughs and other branches of trees or flowers, then began exchanging gifts of sweets, candles, lamps, copper, silver and gold This is probably the most recent origin of exchanging Christmas gifts. And if your children have long lists that seem impossible to fill, that also is not new. The Emperor Calligula (37-41) upset his subjects by publishing an edict listing what expected in the way of presents and stood on the stoop of his palace to receive them in person. Today, in some countries gifts are exchanged on Christmas Day, but in many countries they are exchanged at Epiphany (January 6) to commemorate the coming of the Three Wise Men to Bethlehem, bearing gifts to the Christ Child (which is the ancient reason given for the origin of exchanging gifts).

Anciently, people used the mistletoe at the Festival of the Winter Solstice because it was considered sacred to the sun. The custom of kissing under the mistletoe was an early step in the celebration of the death of the old sun and the birth of the new at the winter solstice.

In the northern countries of Europe, St. Martin and later St. Nicholas awarded good children with nuts, fruits, and sweets and those that had misbehaved with rods and switches. The Dutch called St. Nicholas by the name Santa Klaus and as such he was taken by them to America and became Santa Clause.

The Christmas card is purely an English invention. In the early part of the last century it became the custom for English school children to write and decorate "Christmas pieces" for their parents. In 1843 Sir Henry Cole and John Horsley created a more professional version of the Christmas pieces and the Christmas card was born.

Mahala, Knox Double Winners

The short stirrup grand champion was Jennifer Haines of Boothwyn, riding sidekick. This division is for riders age 12 and under. There was a tie for the reserve grand champion (and, in fact, scores were very close throughout the series). The joint reserve grand champions were Andrea Heinzman and Toni Wasylyk of Cochranville, riding Little Rascal.

The grand champion of the western division went to Desert Bold Fire, owned by Dawn McCuen and ridden by Alicia Boyle of Farmington Circle, West Grove. Reserve grand champion was Country Velvet, owned and ridden by Janet Johnson of Coatesville. Country Velvet was also the grand champion in the pleasure division. Grand reserve in the pleasure division went to Ginger, ridden by Leslie McFadien of Oxford.

This Year I Mean It . . .

"This year, I mean it. I'm going to stick to my New Year's Resolution."

Well, Christmas Day has passed, and you may be feeling an ulcer starting to develop in your stomach anticipating all the bills that need to be paid. And, for many of us, this year's income has been disappointing. How are we going to make ends meet? How are we going to possibly cover the lavish purchases we made this past month?

Well, in 1999 it's going to be different. Right? It could be if you determine to set some very specific goals for your family's finances. But setting a realistic, specific is not as easy as it sounds.

I can't tell you how many times I've asked people to think about a financial goal, and the one they choose is, "I'll get out of debt." A second popular one is "I'll start saving money."

Both those goals sound noble, but they aren't specific or realistic enough to be helpful.

If you are considering a financial resolution this year, make it a good one. Transform that goal to get out of debt into something realistic. If you took years to get into debt, it will take awhile to get out of debt. You can improve the goal by adding amounts, deadlines, and specific areas of action.

Here are two improvements to the debt goal: "By the end of 1999, I will pay off the outstanding balance on my MasterCard bill. I will do this by not charging any more expenses to the card and by paying $35 from each paycheck toward the outstanding balance." or "I will pay $10 extra on my store charge card each time I pay the bill until I have a zero balance."

This way you can really check your progress, and you are not expecting to solve all the problems, but rather are taking things in smaller chunks.

At a recent seminar on investing for retirement, a colleague shared the following illustration with me. She demonstrated that a person depositing $2,000 a year in an account earning 9% interest from age 22 to 30 and making no additional deposits after that would accumulate $579,471 in the account by age 65.

If a person waited until 31 years of age and deposited $2,000 every year from then until retirement at age 65, they would only accumulate $470,249. Her conclusion—put as much away as early as you can. The amount that you save is much less important than starting to save at an early age and letting time do the work for you. Knowing this motivated me to maximize the amount of money I am putting away for my retirement now.

Once you have set a realistic goal, you need to find ways to limit expenses or stretch income so that you have a few extra dollars to apply toward the goal.

Here are a few money saving ideas to get you started. When you fill up your gasoline tank, shop for inexpensive fuel. In our area this past month, the gas prices have differed as much as 10 or 15 cents a gallon. Over a year's time, you can save lots by selecting the less expensive station.

Shop around for banking services, too. You can save more than $100 per year by using a low or no-fee checking account and by using ATM machines that don't have surcharges. These banks may be hard to find, but they do exist. Spend a morning on the phone contacting banks and asking questions You may find more success contacting locally-owned facilities or by joining a credit union.

Another way to save money is to drop the special telephone services that you have. Call waiting, caller ID, and other services are NOT necessities. Dropping them can give you money to pay off a consumer loan.

If you'd like to receive ongoing support as your reduce debt or increase your savings, consider enrolling in the free Cooperative Extension Program Money 2000. For more information, contact your local extension office to sign up. Don't delay. Each paycheck that passes is a missed opportunity to improve your financial situation.

Bucks County 4-Hers Win Awards

Recently several Bucks County 4-Hers were honored for their outstanding work in the 4-H Horse and Pony project. The 4-H Achievement Day was held Nov. 22 at the Lenape Valley Presbyterian Church in New Britain.

The 1998 Outstanding Junior Horse Award Winner was Jen Gardner of Warrington. She is the daughter of Jeff and Terri Gardner. Jen is 14 years old and a member of the Riders of the Dark Hollow 4-H Club. Although this was only her first year in 4-H, she did an outstanding job with her project books, the club scrapbook, and also attended several county, regional and state events. Jen spent many hours working with her miniature horse named Rose. She and Rose went all the way to the state 4-H Horse Show and placed third.

The 1998 Outstanding Senior Horse Award Winner was Elizabeth Hollister of Huntingdon Valley. She is the daughter of Paul and Janice Hollister. Elizabeth is 16 years old and a member of the Horsin' A Round 4-H Club. Elizabeth is great teen leader and takes on any club responsibility necessary. She did a superb job with her record keeping and project books

The 4-H Horseless Project Awards recognizes a 4-H member who has excelled in the horse program even without a horse. This year's winner is Suzi Gattone of Jamison. Suzi, daughter of Steve and Paula Gattone, is 10 years old and a member of the Horsin' A Round Club. This was her second year in 4-H. She is active in all club activities and helps out whenever possible.

4-H Dairy, Dairy Goat Awards

The Chester County 4-H Dairy & Dairy Goat Awards Banquet was held Friday, Nov. 20, at the East Brandywine Fire Hall.

A family style chicken dinner was served to 100 4-Hers and their families and friends.

Tri-Community Dairy Club was in charge of the affair and various 4-H members conducted the meeting with Erica Lloyd of Pottstown serving as master of ceremonies. Cindy Grossman, Chester County's dairy princess, presented a speech on the nutritional benefits of milk and dairy products.

Russ Albright of Keystone Farm Credit gave the group an update on the Romano 4-H Center of Chester County. Another successful 4-H Roundup week was held in August, including the largest ever dairy show, hosting 150 dairy animals. Also, a very successful 4-H Center Benefit Auction was held in late September. The money raised at this event will be used to cover current expenses and construct new facilities, including a second horse ring.

The banquet culminated with entertainment provided by the Chester County Kids Dairy Goat Club. Melissa Wertz prepared a "Top Ten" list of why people own goats rather than cows. Melissa also encouraged "active participation" when she invited everyone to join in the Macarana.

Dairy Goat Awards were presented to the high individual project book scores in each club based on the quality and completeness of their book and their performance throughout the 4-H year. Veronica Bates of Gradyville captured the High Achievement Award for the Chester County Kids Club. In the New London Club Jessica Bohmier had the top project award Awards were also presented to the fitting and showing champions and the breed champions from the Chester County 4-H Dairy Goat Roundup this past summer.

In early September, 13-year-old Jessica Bohmier, an active 4-H member, died in a plane crash. A memorial achievement award, exemplifying her dedication and care for dairy goats, was presented to Jessica posthumously. This award will be given to one participant each year who exhibits superior leadership and achievements throughout the project year.

The top Achievement Award for Dairy based on the total project score was won by Tri-Community member Christy Guest of Pottstown with her Holstein heifer project, Century-Oak Bunker Julia. In conjunction with this award, Christy also received a rotating plaque given by Mildred Seeds of Downingtown, in memory of her parents, George and Mary Seeds. Other Achievement Award winners included Christy's brother, Brad Guest, of the Tri-Community Dairy Club receiving a first-year trophy. In the Manor Dairy Club Robert Petrovich Cochranville, was the winner with Joe Stowe of Rising Sun, Md., taking first-year honors. Meredith Baily, West Chester, captured the award in the Chester Valley Club while Drew Harrop of Kennett Square was the first-year winner.

The first annual Outstanding 4-H Dairy Volunteer Award, established in memory of Ken Brown, a dedicated 4-H dairy parent who passed away in July, was presented to his wife, Kit.

Production Awards, based on M.E., 305 day records, 2X were given to the top entries in six breeds. The Ayrshire winner for milk and protein was Exchange Miracle Freckles with 18,265 pounds of milk and 610 pounds of protein entered by Meredith Baily of Chester. Meredith also won the milk and protein production award for Linebacks with Carlson Farms Hershey Kiss, delivering 19,291 pounds of milk and 596 pounds of protein. Erica Lloyd, Pottstown, had the high Holstein for milk and protein, Lundale Journey Debra-TW, with 34,227 pounds of milk and 1,081 pounds of protein.

Erica also captured the high milk award for Jerseys with Agape Van Buren Meadow Bear, producing 22,013 pounds of milk. Erica's cow El's Brook Imperial Melissa was the top for individual protein, producing 758 pounds. In the Brown Swiss breed, Erica also received the high milk protein award with Brownswitch Con C Krystal, achieving 31,432 pounds of milk and 1,033 pounds of protein. Julie Sollenberger, Spring City, had the high Guernsey for milk, French Creek Victory Valentine, with 16,603 pounds of milk. Todd Mast of Elverson exhibited the top protein producing Guernsey, achieving 445 pounds. Trophies were also given out to the 1998 4-H Dairy Roundup Show winners and fitting and showmanship champions.

Farm Credit Awards for excellence in a wide variety of 4-H activities went to Melissa Wertz of Downingtown for the Senior Dairy Goat Award, receiving a $50 savings bond. Meredith Baily of West Chester achieved the Senior Award for Dairy Cattle, also receiving a $50 savings bond. They were presented by Russ Albright from Keystone Farm Credit, ACA, Avondale.

Young Farmers Present $1,000 To Help Needy

Christmas giving started early for Ephrata Area Young Farmers Association (EAYFA). In order to be able to give to community needs, EAYFA members operate the Tent City food stand during the Ephrata Fair. Connie Weaver of Ephrata Area Social Services accepts a $1,000 check from Glenn Martin, EAYFA president, while Mike Brubaker, EAYFA adviser; watches. At right are John and Doris Zimmerman, members who for the past 25 years often work at the stand from morning to 11:30 p.m.

Maryland DHIA Report For November

The November Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top ten herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

THE BEST TIRES IN THE WORLD HAVE GOODYEAR WRITTEN ALL OVER THEM

Roland P. Freund
Farm Management Agent
Penn State Cooperative Extension

In Pennsylvania we have farms which have been in a single family for several centuries. Keeping the farm in the family, and the family on the farm are goals often heard. But these goals are becoming increasingly difficult and frustrating for many families.

Farm operations have generally become larger and more complex. Because people are living longer, there may be as many as four generations owning or working the farm. There are off-farm family members who are thought to be entitled to a share. Laws change relatively often. These factors alone make it difficult to set in motion a smooth transfer process to avoid the major disasters which otherwise occur.

Every farm is different, and there are many different ways to go about achieving the transfer of the business. But there is a common process which can help to ensure success.

- ◆ Your goals
- ◆ Taking steps to achieve those goals
- ◆ Monitoring progress toward the goals
- ◆ Revisions and adjustments to change.

1 Set Goals

Each generation needs to set these for themselves Communication is the key to this process:

- ◆ Discuss with spouse
- ◆ Discuss with family
- ◆ Write them down
- ◆ Review and revise (every 3 years)

A typical farm couple's goals might be:

- ◆ Care and support of spouse, dependents
- ◆ Income for life
- ◆ Ownership of farm
- ◆ Security for retirement
- ◆ Heritage to pass down
- ◆ Security in case of disability

There is a potential for conflict if each family fails to consider all of the generations involved. These may be:

- ◆ Golden-agers who may be in their 80s
- ◆ Middle-agers (60s)
- ◆ Young adults (late 30s)
- ◆ Youth

All generations involved need to get together to set common goals and timetables for the orderly transfer in a suggested sequence of.

- ◆ Business operation and management
- ◆ "Workhorse Assets"

- Breeding livestock, Machinery
- Business buildings and structures

- ◆ Ownership of real estate

If death is the only thing that triggers these transfers, then conflict and disaster are very likely to take place.

2. Create support network

It is necessary to have people who will help to plan and those who will carry out the transfer process. Identify and name:

- ◆ executrix, co-executors
- ◆ guardians for children and others
- ◆ trustee(s) to manage, disburse support funds (trust proceeds, insurance)
- ◆ advisors - attorney, accountant, management advisor, insurance provider.

3. Inventory Needs, Assets, Debts

Identify needs and source of funds to support spouse and dependents. List assets and debts

- ◆ By ownership

-Individual, joint, partnership, corporate.

- ◆ By category, class

- Operating or "Current"
- Working or "Intermediate"
- Business facilities and structures
- Real estate (non-depreciable)

- ◆ Value using Market and "Book" values.

Middle-agers' $1.4m. Estate

- ◆ Business Operation $200,000

-Inventories, crops, feeder stock, cash

- ◆ Capital, working assets $400,000

-Breeding livestock, machinery, equip

- ◆ Farm buildings, structures $350,000
- ◆ Land and residence $450,000

Assume no debt, Total $1,400,000

Present Estates of the Children(Example)

Child:	Trucker 38.	Professional 34.	Farmer 36.
Home equity	$100k	$200k	$ 0
Business	$ 60k	$100k	$ 20
Investments	0	$100k	$ 20
Retirement	$100k	$100k	$ 0
Equity	$260k	$500k	$ 40k

In this example, the farm son has not had the chance to build equity like his siblings.

For smooth and effective transfer of the farm business.

- ◆ Golden-agers in their 80's should normally be out of the "business". Their assets should be limited to Real Estate and non-farm investments.
- ◆ Middle-agers (60s) should be working their way out of Operation, Livestock, Machine, Structures, but retain Land
- ◆ Young adults (late 30s) should be building equity in Operation, Livestock, Machinery, and even new Facilities or land
- ◆ Youth - Breeding livestock

4. Review management

Name each person responsible for:

- ◆ General management
- ◆ Financial management
- ◆ Labor organization and schedule
- ◆ Livestock production
- ◆ Crop production

Who can step in if a manager is disabled?

5. Plan Transfer of Management

It is not necessary for a generation to own the farm before they have management responsibilities transferred to them:

- ◆ Start early, and outline a timetable
- ◆ Don't dump it on anyone
- ◆ Provide training for every level
- ◆ Assign responsibility and authority
- ◆ Review and reward regularly (annually)
- ◆ Establish and maintain effective communication channels
- ◆ Give up the reins sooner- rather than later.

6. Plan Transfer of Business

Partnerships are very effective to move the Operation, livestock, and equipment. They may also involve facilities and structures.

Sales should be considered where payments and taxes are affordable to both parties

Gifts - annual $10,000 per person

- lifetime

Trusts, Will

7. Plan transfer of other assets

- ◆ Real estate and dwelling(s)
- ◆ Non-farm investments, securities
- ◆ Family heirlooms and collectibles
- ◆ Endowments and charitable gifts

8. Draft legal documents

- ◆ Partnership agreement or dissolution
- ◆ Rental, lease agreements
- ◆ Sever joint ownership where desirable
- ◆ Gift ownership interest / annual gifts
- ◆ Wills and Trusts

9. Share plan with those involved

- ◆ Executors
- ◆ Business partners and stakeholders
- ◆ Heirs and beneficiaries
- ◆ Guardians and trustees
- ◆ Accountant and management consultant

10. Define review schedule

- ◆ Every 5 years or at:
- ◆ Birth, marriage, divorce, death in family
- ◆ Major investment, expansion, change or dissolution of the business

Whichever comes first

These are the major steps in an on-going and continuous transfer process. If these steps are followed Estate taxes will seldom become an issue. Fear of Tax burdens should never dictate an estate plan. Every family with their own unique situation using these steps can do things a little differently to achieve their own goals.

While professionals can help, they can never create a plan for your family. You will need to set your own timetable and then take the time and take the steps to transfer the business.

Lowest Hog Prices Since Pre-World War II Require Swift Solution

AMES, Iowa — Crushed by the lowest pork prices seen in nearly 60 years, America's hog producers are on the brink of financial ruin. And one of the nation's leading agricultural groups, the National Farmers Organization, has called for immediate USDA payments to save family-sized independent pork producers.

"Today's pork industry is in an extremely critical situation that demands swift and sure action on the part of USDA," said Gene Paul, National Farmers president. "There is an immediate need for a direct infusion of capital into family-sized independent producer operations. That capital would allow producers to stay afloat momentarily, restoring some hope and stability to the industry until they can meet with their lenders to work out a long range marketing plan."

The pork price crisis extends into Canada, where government officials have already bolstered their farm safety net by increasing financial help to all farmers, including hog producers. "Canada has already moved to shore up their farming industry, and USDA needs to do the same thing for our hog producers, or mass bankruptcies will certainly occur very soon," said Paul.

Some industry analysts and political representatives believe family-sized independent pork producers are innocent victims, suffering because of untamed corporate monopolization of the agricultural industry. In addition, many political leaders from ag states are calling attention to the fact that the price consumers pay for pork has only fallen 2½ percent in the last year, while pork's wholesale value has fallen to levels not seen in six decades.

"It'a a concrete fact that independent family farmers not integrators or megacorporate hog producing companies, should receive immediate financial assistance," said Paul. "In my opinion, large multinational corporate hog companies have helped to create this crisis in their zeal to dominate the industry."

In Iowa, the nation's largest hog producing state, desperate farmers have publicly stated they believe they're on the Titanic, and that it's simply to late for anything other than emergency disaster payments. Additionally, Iowa producers are calling for an investigation into pork market domination by a handful of packers and megacompanies.

Other proposals to help ease the crisis are on the table, but Paul feels the pork price emergency has moved too rapidly for other options to be implemented effectively. "We support many of the options proposed by other major farm groups, but any solution must address the needs of America's family sized independent operations first, and not the supersized pork corporations," emphasized Paul.

Tomato Growers' To Meet Jan. 7

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — The Northeast Tomato Growers Meeting will be Thursday, Jan. 7, at Thompson's Dairy Bar on the Newton-Ransom Boulevard in Lackawanna County.

The meeting will start at 9 a.m. and end at 3 p.m.

Reservation deadline is Wednesday, Dec. 30, at the Lackawanna County Cooperative Extension office.

Sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and the Lackawanna County Horticultural Association, the 1999 program will focus on using high tunnels to have earlier production, plant nutrition, tomato diseases control, soil health, the Food Quality Protection Act, Admire on transplants, and more.

Speakers include Otho Wells from the University of New Hampshire, Cyril Smith and John Esslinger from Penn State University, and James Garrahan from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Joseph Colangelo from the Department of Agriculture will be present to assign training credits for recertification of applicators of restricted use pesticides.

Reservation (includes lunch) is $10 to be mailed to Lackawanna County Extension, 200 Adams Avenue, Scranton, PA 18503 by Dec. 30.

Growers Congress Provides Learning Opportunities

COLUMBUS Ohio – Temperature swings from hot to cold back to hot, hail, excess rain, and drought are just a few of the weather challenges Ohio's fruit and vegetable growers will continue to face, said Dick Funt, a small fruits specialist at Ohio State University.

This year's Ohio Fruit and Vegetable Growers Congress will address ways growers can prepare for such erratic weather.

Held concurrently with the Roadside Marketing Conference and the Ohio Grape-Wine Short Course, the Ohio Fruit and Vegetable Growers Congress is scheduled at the Toledo SeaGate Centre. While registration for the Wine Short Course is separate from the other two events, participants can attend the sessions of either group.

Improved cultivators are coming out that can survive wide temperature swings. Funt said. There are also cultivars of fruit that are more resistant to diseases. That helps growers reduce pesticide use and lower their costs of production.

General sessions on Wednesday, Feb. 3 will address labor relations and migrant labor concerns, weed control strategies, sprayer techniques, worker protection issues, and pesticide regulatory information.

The remaining two days are divided by programs. Growers can attend sessions regarding small fruits, processing crops, potatoes, truck crops, tree fruits, roadside marketing, and wine-grape production.

•Using composted yard waste to improve soil quality.

•Reports on Ohio State research including cultivar data on pumpkins, cucumbers, cabbage tomatoes, potatoes, sweet corn, and peppers.

•Grapevine training systems for Syval and French-American hybrids.

Ideally, managers can capture new ideas at the Congress and integrate those things into their operation, Funt said. Those changes should help them optimize their operation for 1999.

More than 1,6000 growers and industry-affiliated personnel are expected to attend the joint conferences and trade show. About a dozen of the programs will apply towards pesticide application recertification.

For more registration information on the Ohio Fruit and Vegetable Growers Congress and Roadside Marketing Conference, contact the Ohio Fruit Growers Society at (614) 249-2424. For information on the Ohio Grape-Wine Short Course, contact the Ohio Wine Producers Association at (800) 227-6972.

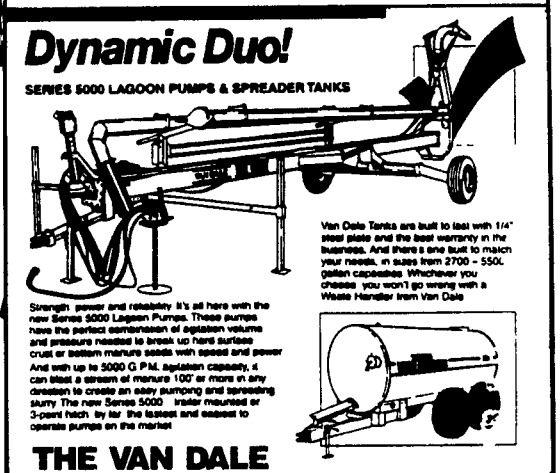
Dynamic Duo!
SERIES 5000 LAGOON PUMPS & SPREADER TANKS



Van Dale Tanks are built to last with 1/4" steel plate and the best warranty in the business. And there's one built to match your needs, in sizes from 2700 - 5500 gallon capacities. Whichever you choose, you won't go wrong with a Waste Handler from Van Dale

Strength, power and reliability. It's all here with the new Series 5000 Lagoon Pumps. These pumps have the perfect combination of agitation volume and pressure needed to break up hard surface crust or bottom manure solids with speed and power. And with up to 5000 G.P.M. agitation capacity, it can blast a stream of manure 100' or more in any direction to create an easy pumping and spreading slurry. The new Series 5000 trailer mounted or 3-point hitch by far the fastest and easiest to operate pumps on the market

CHECK OUT THESE FEATURES
- Revolving Bearing Assembly
- Hydraulic Control from the Tractor Seat

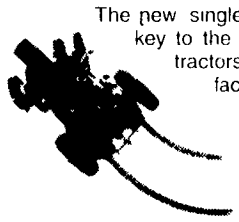
Industry Leading Turning Radius

The revolutionary chassis of the MX Series Magnum improves your overall performance and productivity In fact, the innovative Surround frame allows for the tightest turning radius in the industry even with front duals!

Thanks to axle improvements engine placement and a sleek hood design, the MX Series Magnum can easily turn into 12 30 inch rows with all row crop tire configurations on true 60 inch tread settings



The new single piece sculpted, cast iron Surround frame is the key to the enhanced capabilities and performance of these tractors It enables the MX Series Magnum to offer the first factory front duals dramatically improving both traction and flotation By balancing the chassis, we've significantly reduced the amount of front ballast required And the frame easily accommodates mounted chemical tanks or loaders allowing you to perform multiple applications

Built Stronger
to Last Longer

Every MF® Series tractor is built rugged and tough for years and years of your most demanding work. It's evident everywhere you look. Even in their resale value.

Their Perkins diesel engines are exceptionally cool running for longer life. Plus, they have a well-deserved reputation for high efficiency and high-torque backup. Which makes your work go faster and better.

In addition, they have the features you need to effectively handle today's and tomorrow's implements and attachments.

The CLAAS® Quadrant 1200 square baler – The new standard equipment for commercial operators

Yes, the Quadrant 1200 delivers that density commercial operators want. Yes, its bales inhibit spoilage by keeping the air out. Yes, they preserve quality because they minimize nutrient loss.

The 1200 also offers the high production capacities you demand. Its 4 ft x 2-1/4 ft x up to 8 ft long bales effectively increase storage space and dramatically increase transport capacities–all at a high productivity rate. And you know what this means to your bottom line.

CLAAS's shaft-driven knotters have earned a worldwide reputation for reliability and low maintenance. Other notable features are its 3-stage pre-chamber, 78" wide pickup, powerful transmission, heavy-duty worm gear, 1000rpm pto, hydraulic density control, capacity for up to 24 balls of sisal or plastic twine, and of course 6 dependable CLAAS shaft-driven knotters.

Production capacity. Convenient handling and storage. Economical transport. Density and quality. A better bottom line.

For more information about the Quadrant and how it can meet your commercial needs, contact the CLAAS dealer listed below.

The 6100 Series Rigid And Vertical Fold Planters.

Precision farming starts with precision seed placement. And that's exactly what you'll get with the White 6100 Series planters. Our pull-type planters feature an exclusive air-metering system that's designed to singulate every seed. Its low air pressure, edge-drop seed discs and short, 18" seed drop ensure precise seed placement for maximum germination.

Adaptable To Any Tillage Situation.

Our 4, 6, 8 and 12 row planters have the flexibility to meet most tillage practices both now and in the future. They're built rugged with a massive 7" x 7" frame and strong, welded-tongue design to handle the demands of heavy residue. Add a 6900 splitter attachment for interplant capability.

This season get the planter that places each seed where it'll grow the best — and perform the best. Stop by your AGCO® White Planter dealer today.

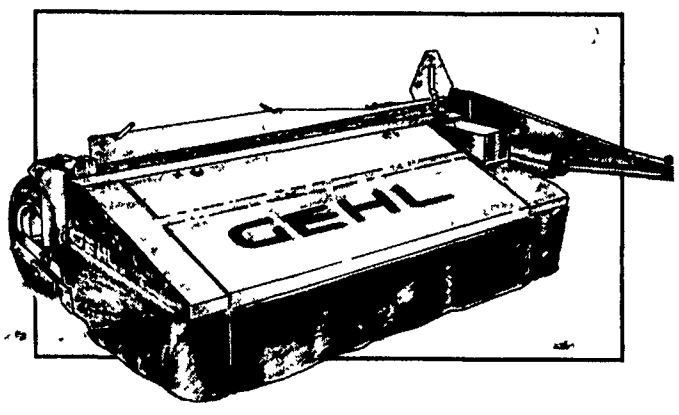
GEHL

2345/2365 DISC MOWERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy, the DC2345 has 7 discs and a 9'2" cutting width; the DC2365 has 8 discs and a 10'3" cutting width. A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

- Designed with the operator in mind
- Easy access all around
- An equal angle PTO
- Three-point flotation support

Cut Your Fields Down To Size!

Gehl swing-frames give you the capacity and maneuverability of a self-propelled mower conditioner at a pull-type price plus the advantages of high-speed disc cutting technology.

- Nine disc cutterbar delivers 11-foot 7-inch cut
- Wide conditioning rolls for uniform, fast drying.
- Full-width skid shoes protect the cutterbar.
- Simple drive system for more reliability
- Change from windrow to swath in seconds - without tools.

Lor*Al, Ag Depot Announce Agreement

BENSON, Minn. – Lor*Al Products Inc. (Lor*Al) of Benson, Minn. and Millstreet Development Corp (Ag Depot) of Regina, SK announced that they have reached an agreement whereby Ag Depot is named the Lor*Al distributor in the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. This agreement gives Lor*Al representation at Ag Depot locations in Regina, Saskatoon, Brandon, Neepawa, and St. Jean.

According to Dean Anderson, vice president of sales and product development at Lor*Al Products Inc., "Ag depot will represent Lor*Al in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. We view this partnership as a win-win situation because customers are now able to buy Lor*Al machines and receive service on these machines at Ag Depot locations in these two provinces. Lor*Al gets the representation that Ag Depot provides an Ag Depot gets the excellent flotation product line that we have developed over many years in the business."

Randy Faulkner, executive vice president of Ag Depot, said, "Lor*Al is a well respected product line in our trade area and we think that these products will complement our current product offerings very well. We've built our business on exceptional service and our customers can expect the same high level of service on Lor*Al products, In addition, the Lor*Al site-specific product line helps reinforce our efforts to provide our customers with state of the art site-specific products. All in all we think that the addition of Lor*Al equipment to our line gives our customers one more reason to do business with Ag Depot."

Smoketown Quality Dairy Sales held their 25th anniversary and holiday celebration last week with a complete Registered Holstein milking herd and heifer dispersal for West Lane Farm, Walton, New York.

An EX-90 Raider daughter due in July topped the sale at $3,200. Milking 123 pounds, she was projected to 28,078m 741f 894p.

The EX-93 Delaware daughter fresh in October was milking 118 pounds and sold for $3,000. Her dam had over 203,900 pounds.

Third high was a GP Ilex daughter fresh last month and milking 106 pounds that sold for $2,550

Fourth high at $2,400 was a VG-85 Starbuck daughter, and fifth high at $2,200 was a GP-84 Mark Wayne daughter.

Mumma Joins White Oak Mills

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co) — White Oak Mills Inc. has announced the addition of Tom Mumma, Elizabethtown, to its professional sales team.

Having worked in the poultry feed industry for more than 33 years, Mumma is responsible for White Oak Mills' poultry feed sales. His new responsibilities include building alliances within the poultry industry and working with Pennsylvania's commercial layer and embryo producers to maximize feed efficiencies.

Tractors Equipped With Clean, Quiet Diesel Engine

Designed for the long haul and precision engineered, Kubota diesel technology has gained a favorable reputation with owners and operators worldwide.

Noteworthy is the fact that Kubota E-TVCS engines were the first to obtain CARB (California Air Resources Board) certification for utility engines under 25 horsepower. This was accomplished by successfully meeting the state's diesel emissions regulations, considered to be the nation's most stringent.

Grand-L Ten Series models are equipped with 3- or 4-cylinder engines, ranging in gross horsepower from 32.1 to 45.3. Net horsepower ratings range from 30.4 to 43.0 PTO horsepower for FST and GST transmission-equipped models range from 25.5 to 37.5.

At the heart of the E-TVCS engine is its E-TVCS combustion system that allows for quick and even fuel mixing for fast combustion. The fuel mixture burns evenly through the various stages of combustion, resulting in cleaner emissions and a higher torque rise. The engine's long stroke and unique governor mechanism can handle sudden load changes quickly, sustaining optimum performance.

Greater combustion efficiency is further established by the injection pump's double throttle injection nozzle and dumping valve. These offer precision fuel management and stability during combustion. The results are lower noise, less engine vibration, and cleaner emissions.

A highly rigid tunnel type cylinder block is used. Crossflow cylinder heads keep the intake air temperature cooler, which enhances fuel combustion and overall engine performance. Other cooling technologies include a fan located behind the radiator which pulls cool air across the radiator fins and then blows down and through the sides of the engine, boosting the radial flow of cool air under the hood.

A quick start super-glow plug pre-heat system is standard and guarantees easy starts in cold or hot weather. It's automatic, just turn on the key, let the indicator light go out, and start the engine.

Case Introduces Sprayer

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation has introduced the new Case IH SPX 4260 Patriot™ sprayer, the first new product in the Case IH crop care equipment line.

With 260 horsepower and a tank capacity of up to 1,200 gallons, the SPX 4260 is the newest approach for improving operational efficiency and increasing productivity and serviceability in high clearance sprayers.

"Combining the Aim™ Command Spray System with the SPX 4260 offers a quantum leap in spray technology, addressing chemical effectiveness, drift risk management, and operational efficiency," said John Garrison, general manager, agricultural systems. "These new Case IH sprayers are an important response to the needs of custom applicators and large, independent producers."

The new AIM Command Spray System allows for droplet-sized control for consistent chemical application, and it provides a tool for drift risk management. Its unique design allows pressure to be controlled independent of flow, and flow to be controlled independent of pressure. Even though it uses standard spray tips, it frees the operator from the constraints "along a traditional tip curve," providing ultimate control over the size of the droplets.

"AIM will change how the industry sprays," said Steve Willey, product manager, self-propelled sprayers. "Even though significant advancements have been made in the last 30-40 years, no other system has advanced spray technology to the extent that the AIM Command has."

The Case IH 4260 sprayer represents the first new product in the Case IH crop care equipment line. The new sprayer combines the Aim Command Spray System with a 26-horsepower engine and 1,200-gallon tank.

This new sprayer is powered by a Case CDC (Consolidated Diesel Company, a Case-Cummins joint venture) 8.3 L engine with 825 foot pounds of torque to enhance productivity. Road speeds of up to 30 mph and 1,000/1,200-gallon spray tank capacity, further enhance efficiency.

The new tucked-inside suspension ensures better crop clearance, while the wheel motor and hub assembly placement inside the wheel results in less crop damage. The modular self-centering 60 foot/90 foot "floater-style" boom with its foldover top and double breakaway, make for both more accurate applications and a longer boom life.

The Case IH SPX 4260 also offers a variety of options, including active suspension for hill climbing, all-wheel steer for maneuvering, a traction package and the typical optional package of fenders, chemical inductors, and crop shields. In addition, site-specific options include the AIM Navigation system and the AIM Command Spray System.

Operator efficiency is enhanced on the Case IH SPX 4260 through improved serviceability and creature comforts The service center features simplified instructions, an organized valve location, and three-inch remote fill lines. Easy access to daily maintenance items from the cab walkway (all located along one side), simplified hydraulic hose routing, more hard plumbing, o-ring face seals and fittings, and the pump drive-out location in the back of the engine, all contribute to enhanced serviceability and reliability. The new single lever hydrostatic drive control features automatic "on-the-go" range shifting plus dial selection of maximum travel speed, improving ease of operation. Additionally, the rear-mounted engine makes for a quieter ride, and lessens operator fatigue.

Planting Bin-Run Seed Is Risky Economically, Legally

EAGAN, Minn. – In light of today's poor market prices, soybean growers may be tempted to save some of their 1998 soybean crop for 1999 planting. Or they may consider buying "brown bag" seed (grower-saved seed sold to another grower) for next year's crop.

These options are extremely risky, from both a financial and legal perspective.

"Growers may save some money on soybean seed in the short run," said Dave Voss, Mycogen Seeds soybean product manager. "But in the long run, they will experience reduced soybean yields and miss out on the value-added services and quality guarantee that seed companies provide."

According to Voss, a 60-pound -per-acre planting rate requires 120 50-pound units of professionally produced seed to plant 100 acres. At a $16 price per unit after discounts, the seed bill totals $1,920, or $19.20 per acre.

On the other hand, when planting bin-run seed, other costs and hassles enter the equation: a conservation charge for cleaning of $1 per bushel, a 10 percent cleanout for which the producer normally isn't compensated, and about a 1.5 bushel-per-acre yield loss. Research trials consistently show reduced yields of 1 to 2 bushels per acre when bin-run seed is used.

Under these conditions, growers-saved seed costs $15.99 per acre, assuming a $5.50 per bushel market value for grain. Total savings: $3.21 per acre.

"At first, these savings may look convincing," Voos said, "But the long-term ramifications should discourage growers from planting bin-run soybean seed."

According to Jim Beuerlein, a soybean extension specialist at The Ohio State University, farmers are gambling with their potential yields when planting bin-run seed.

"Unless farmers make a special effort at harvest to prevent damaging the grain, they'll end up with inferior seed for next year's crop. Bin-run seed may or may not be pure," he said.

One of the most obvious reasons to purchase bagged seed is the replant option offered by seed companies, Voss said.

"Generally, seed companies will provide seed at 50 percent of the original cost if a grower needs to replant a crop," he said. "Planting bin-run or brown-bag seed doesn't come with this sort of guarantee."

Ed Oplinger, University of Wisconsin-Extension soybean agronomist, points out several other advantages: Certified seed is high in germination, free of seedborne disease organisms, void of cracks and other mechanical damage, and free of other crop and weed seeds, he said.

"Purchased seed is planted, prepared, and harvested as seed - not grain," Oplinger said. "Production of good quality soybean seed is the business of seed producers."

According to Voss, as farmers adopt a more business-like approach, more soybean growers are planting purchased seed. One market research study shows 82.8 percent of the soybean seed planted in 1998 was purchased seed. This figure is 5.3 percent higher than in 1996. In Iowa, the number one corn-growing state, almost 90 percent of the soybean seed planted was purchased seed.

"This is good news for the entire industry," Voss said. "It's in all our best interests to plant purchased seed. If growers save and replant seed, companies have less incentive to invest in future technologies, which in the end improve soybean growers' bottom lines."

If economic factors aren't enough of an incentive to plant purchased seed, legal issues should clearly reinforce the decision.

The Plant Variety Protection act, as amended in 1994, prohibits the sale or transfer of any PVPA-protected variety introduced since April 4, 1994. It also strictly limits the amount of seed a producer may save for planting. In addition, both buyer and seller can be held liable for violations involving brown-bag seed transactions.

Even stricter patent laws regulate use of genetically engineered seed, such as Roundup Ready varieties. These varieties are typically purchased with a label license restricting use to only the production of a single crop of grain. the use or sale of the crop produced from such seed for planting seed purposes is a violation of the label license. And, even if the producer didn't sign a license agreement or order/invoice statement, unauthorized use of a crop may constitute a patent infringement.

Violating PVPA and patent laws can warrant stiff fines. Offenders can be liable for triple damages plus legal costs. And these damages can extend to the total crop produced from the unauthorized seed.

So if a producer illegally saves enough Roundup Ready seed to plant 100 acres, which yields 4,000 bushes, the variety owner could potentially recover damages based on three times or more the value of the total 4,000 harvested bushels, plus all legal costs.

Voss said "Growers need to realize that the Plant Variety Protection Act and Patent positions are being enforced. Violators have been caught and forced to pay substanial fines."

Monsanto has won several cases against soybean growers who illegally traded pirated seed. Both the person who provided the seed, as well as those who obtained the seed, must now make all of their soybean production records available to Monsanto for the next five years.

Considering the total number of soybean growers nationwide, the percentage of seed piracy cases is very small. However, Monsanto has examined more than 475 seed piracy claims in 21 states so far. Most violators have been ordered to pay five-figure fines.

Even though Monsanto has become more aggressive in seeking out violators, many have been reported by others, including neighbors, seed processors and grain elevator operators. It is important for any grower thinking about planting bin-run seed or selling brown-bag seed to realize there are severe financial and legal penalties.

Despite the current low soybean prices, experts agree soybean growers shouldn't save bin-run seed for their 1999 crop. Farmers face the risk of cutting yields by planting inferior seed. They also miss out on services and guarantees offered by seed companies. Additionally, growers will pay steep fines if caught planting patent-protected seeds, such as Roundup Ready varieties.

VOLUMAXX

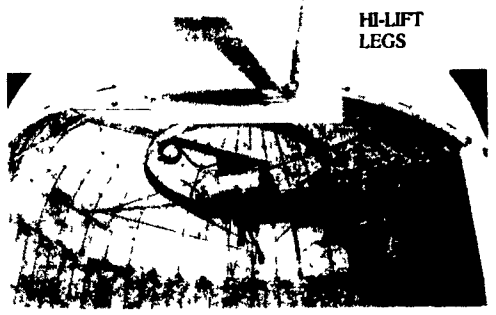
HI-LIFT LEGS



The new advance design Volumaxx unloader gives you the best of both worlds your choice of distribution New HI-LIFT legs let you raise the unloader an extra 15' into the silo roof, so you can use a conventional side distributor Or, choose the Jamesway Powermaxx™ broad pan silage distributor With proper distribution, you'll have better quality feed, and you'll increase your silo's capacity up to 35% And we can prove it!

Sollenberger Silos Corp.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21ST CENTURY?

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow

Millcreek Spreaders last and last

Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

3. Reduces Winter Kill

QUALITY is our #1 Product

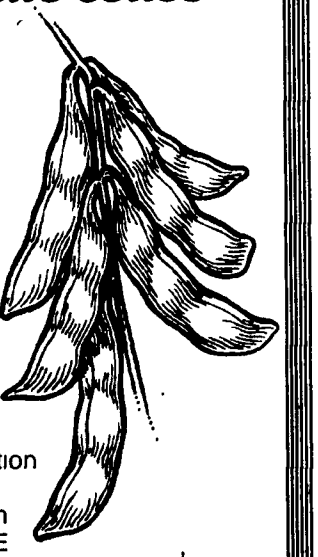
PARS, INC.
POSITIVE APPROACH for REVITALIZING SOILS

1-800-929-2676

Sell your beans?

"It just doesn't make sense"

1. Why loose the 18% high energy oil in your own beans?
2. Why let the soybean processor take the valuable lechicin?
3. Why forfeit 50% of the metabolizable energy over SBM?
4. Why pay storage, trucking and shrink?



Be sensible! Let SCHNUPP'S custom roast your Soybeans

Receive the value of added fat in your ration - MORE MILK
Get the most By-Pass Protein available in your beans - MORE PROTEIN UPTAKE
Keep all the nutritional components originally in the soybean. - MORE FLEXIBILITY
Soybeans are valuable, keep profits at home! - MORE FARM INCOME

GRILL MOUNTED REMOTE LIFT SWITCH
Allows operation of lift cylinder from front of truck to assist in plow installation
HIDE AWAY HYDRAULICS
Our hydraulic cavity tucks away our power system. No belts and pulleys under the hood and no ugly box on the front of your truck. A 1/4" skid plate and gasketted top cover are also standard features. This system allows superior airflow to radiator and provides instant down pressure with added weight on the cutting edge
FORMED CROSS MEMBERS
give an exclusive stability unseen in other plows
EXTENDED PUSH FRAME (4")
Clearly the widest push frame on the market. ADVANTAGE superior distribution of force through the plow system and not the vehicle frame
ATTACK ANGLE
Our modern designed moldboard features an 18 contact angle for a superior glide trip in most snow conditions
PLATE STEEL A FRAME
This laser cut frame system joins 3 main members for a raw strength unequaled by the competitor's angle iron frames
FOUR PIN PIVOT FRAME
Spreads weight evenly across frame and adds support to lower section of plow
